In Memoriam

This past Winter an incident occurred which touched the hearts of many NHS students. It was the passing of Mr. Arthur Klein, a teacher par excellence. Mr. Klein was a Math teacher loved by his students because they knew that they could always count on his friendship. His students loved him not only because he was proficient in mathematics, but because he was also capable of transmitting his prodigious knowledge to them.

The love of his students was beautifully expressed by the editor of the Newtonite, and we at Newtonian would like to preserve his eulogy in the 1967 yearbook.

Mr. Arthur Klein
Teacher par excellence

When you have the same teacher for the same subject in the same room (1102) for two and a half years, you develop either an intense dislike for him or an equally deep respect. I don't know anyone in my math class who disliked Mr. Klein, and we were his students since we entered Newton High School in 1964.

How could you not like the man? Mr. Klein was probably the only person I have ever known who could get mad with a smile. Not that he got mad very often. He didn't have to. Mr. Klein was a master of the rare art of friendliness. He usually managed to inject just the right amount of humor—his own personal and often corny brand—into a class, and he was always receptive to questions "from the floor."

Perhaps the one attribute of Mr. Klein which endeared him to us more than anything else was his imperfection. He was forever reminding us that he was capable of making mistakes and that we should not hesitate to correct him if he did. In fact, when someone would ask him to do a home work problem from the night before, Mr. Klein would refuse to answer him unless the request were phrased, "Would you try to do number . . .?" The one mistake Mr. Klein never did make was to place himself above his students. With him, learning was a partnership.

Last Monday my math class met in a different room for the first time in three years. I'm glad the school didn't have us meet in 1102. It would have seemed so empty.

DEDICATION

The quality which often separates an excellent teacher from his colleagues is the amount of enthusiasm he shows for his work. This enthusiasm is demonstrated by the way a teacher conducts his class, by the amount of free time he devotes to his students, and by the services he performs in addition to maintaining his regular class schedule. Miss Mary Waters and Mr. Lamoine Boyle show such outstanding enthusiasm for their profession both in and out of the classroom. It is for this reason that we dedicate to them the 1967 NEWTONIAN.

When you enter Miss Waters' classroom, you immediately become aware of her sparkling enthusiasm. "Good morning!" she exclaims, as she smiles and rushes over to provide any aid she can.

In class, her energy and patience are matched only by her thoroughness in preparing her lessons. She constantly walks around the room as if her energy cannot be contained. Her pats on the shoulder and her gentle corrections encourage a student to work harder.

Miss Waters is especially capable of understanding her student's problems since she too attended Newton High. She is not, however, the kind of teacher who looks back with a sigh to "the good old days." Quite to the contrary, she is always searching for new and better ways to lessen the students' difficulty in learning French.

Miss Waters' enthusiasm does not end in her own classes but extends to her duties as assistant head of the foreign language department. If you have a problem, go to room 315. Miss Waters will usher you warmly into her office for a personal discussion. Don't be surprised if the phone rings several times while you are talking; she is a very popular woman.

Miss Mary Waters

Mr. Lamoine Boyle

Even after thirty years at Newton High, Mr. Boyle is still one of the most lively and enthusiastic teachers in the school. Whether in his role as English teacher, Assistant Housemaster of Riley House, Coach, or just plain friend, he displays the type of spirit that immediately makes him stand out as an exceptional man.

Mr. Boyle is by no means either an easy teacher or an easy coach. He maintains just the right amount of control and discipline to make the students both respect and admire him. He brings a rich background of teaching experience to his classroom and, therefore, is able to understand the many types of problems presented by his students. For his job as coach, Mr. Boyle draws from his own experience as a two-time olympic qualifier and as an honored member of the University of Pennsylvania Hall of Fame. As Assistant Housemaster of Riley House, Mr. Boyle performs his job with understanding and always manages to deal justly with the students.

Mr. Boyle will be very much a part of the future of NHS. Having taught in both Newton High and Tech High, he will be very valuable in helping with the upcoming merger of these two systems.

ADMINISTRATION

ADMINISTRATION

Mr. Richard W. Mechem
Principal

The central administration at Newton High School functions differently than the administration in most public secondary schools. Newton High School enjoys the freedom necessary to operate in today's complex and rapidly changing world. This tradition of freedom, held for over 100 years, has enabled Newton High School to remain among the top public secondary schools in the country. Furthermore, this independence and support have given the Principal the opportunity to extend this tradition to the individual teachers and other administrators at Newton High School.

On the negative side such independence makes it difficult to maintain lines of communication. The direct contact between the Superintendent's office and the individual student and parent has been decreased. This is a calculated risk, but the success of the program throughout the years seems to justify this risk.

The House Plan at Newton High School is another example of the same principle. It creates opportunities for smaller groups of students and teachers to exercise initiative and judgment, at the same time as it moves the central administration one step further from the individual student and teacher.

Although seven years of experience with the House Plan cannot compare with over 100 years of total experience at Newton High School, the decision to inaugurate the Plan seems to have been justified.

But the basic dilemma remains: how can we combine centralized control and supervision with independence and individuality? Our answer is to lessen the effects of the central administration and increase the independence demonstrated by the houses and the students and teachers therein. At the risk of oversimplification, we might say that the less the student sees of the central administration the better!

It is important to keep in mind that this de-centralization (the House Plan) was superimposed upon an already existing academic independence (the departmental structure). Since the departments have contributed so much to the strength of Newton High School throughout the years, their integrity was maintained when the House Plan was established. Thus, we now have two separate channels of communication and control working at Newton High School. Sometimes they parallel each other, sometimes they reinforce each other, and sometimes they meet head-on.

The sum of the problems resulting from the above define the most important daily role of the central administration; namely, to coordinate and integrate these sometimes divergent and powerful forces into a unified whole. At times this can be frustrating, since each individual and/or group would like the school as a total institution to fully support his or its activities. However, the central administration, in considering all aspects of our fully comprehensive high school, often provides direction in a more subtle and less dramatic fashion. This is ultimately a strength, rather than a weakness, since the strength of Newton High School comes from the strength of its divergent programs and from the marvelous individuals who are carrying them out.

A further area of major concern to the central administration is the relationship of Newton High School to the Newton School Department, to the Newton Community and to the world at large. One of the main reasons for Newton's eminence in the educational world is the fact that the High School has dealt directly with institutions and groups throughout the nation which are interested in quality education. Newton High School has felt that the stronger program which it is able to offer because of its activities in the broader educational world justifies the lack of direct communication between the individual student and central administration.

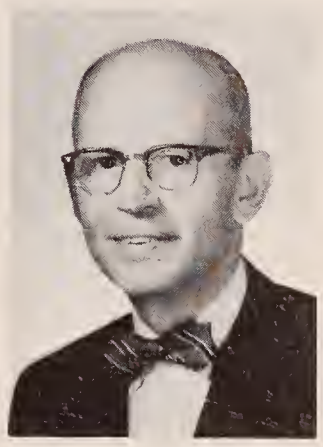

Finally, there are certain routine activities which the central administration must organize and supervise which are not related directly to house or department. The most obvious of these are Student Council activities, class activities which affect the entire school, and certain all-school areas such as the cafeteria. In the conduct of all of these affairs the student does, indeed, come in contact with the central administration, but these are exceptions to our general policy rather than examples thereof.

Thus the role of the central administration may be summarized as follows:

1. Coordinating the departmental structure.
2. Coordinating the House Plan.
3. Coordinating the House Plan with the departmental structure.
4. Relating Newton High School to the Newton School System (to the Superintendent's Office, the Junior High Schools, and the Elementary Schools).
5. Relating Newton High School to the Newton Community.
6. Relating Newton High School to the educational world in general.

Professor John J. Mahoney, Co-founder of the Lincoln Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs wrote many years ago, "The most important business of the American public school is that of making good citizens. It may turn out scholars. It may produce successful men of business. It may educate for culture. It may make possible for its graduates to make a better living. These and other things it may do and yet possibly fail. The real test of its accomplishment is the kind of citizen it furnishes the republic. That is its excuse for being. That, and that alone, primarily justifies its support from public funds."

In a time when our country is recognizing and encouraging intellectual achievement, and in our Newton community where academic excellence is our heritage, we must remember that good citizenship must head our list of objectives of public education. Increasing numbers of parents are turning to the schools for help in this area. As students we ask to be vitally involved in Values and Citizenship. As teachers we cannot but honor the request.

So at Newton High, respecting the individual, we give help and direction in this "super-curriculum" called Citizenship. Our A.F.S. brings students from countries all over the world and sends some of ours across the globe. For the past few summers Newton has offered a Seminar in Citizenship to high school sophomores and juniors. Our school annually has a Student Government exchange with smaller schools in the Commonwealth. However, the concern for Citizenship goes on most regularly and most effectively in the clubs and classrooms, often without fanfare, but always with enthusiasm.

Probably every student who has ever attended N.H.S. knows that in definition and analysis he must "be specific!" If someone asks you to define this school I hope you will be at least this specific: Newton High is the pursuit of academic excellence and good citizenship.

Good citizenship of course, is not easy to define either. We may not capture it or master it, but no matter, we strive for it. Whatever Citizenship means, it must be akin or lead to another word, perhaps the noblest of all. That word is Compassion.

One of the frustrations in teaching is that the teacher seldom sees the full results of his labors. To be sure, examinations are administered and evaluations made, and students are graduated. These, however, are things of the moment, necessary and important, but not the true test of the school's effectiveness. This comes later, and comes in many forms. Some parts of the test are obvious and straightforward, such as the record of our graduates in college, or their performance in a vocation, or their success in a business or profession. Others are less obvious, perhaps, but even more important. These have to do with the attitudes and values you hold, and will be measured against your performance as a citizen in an increasingly complex and difficult society. Here the test will come in such places as the voting booth, where you will exercise (or not) your right to determine what kind of people will represent you in establishing the legislative and executive framework of our government. It will come in the schools of the future, as you help to decide just how important the matter of public education is, and how much support it deserves. It will come in the churches and temples and other places where we will decide what the spiritual fabric of our society will be, and what relationship this fabric will have to the rest of our culture. It will come in the press, and on our television and radio sets, as we determine the quality of the ideas that will be discussed in these and other forms of public communication. It will come in the streets of our great cities, as we wrestle with the question of whether Jefferson's promise of equality for all men is something we wish to take seriously. It will come as each of you in the Class of 1967 examines your relationship to Emerson's statement that "an institution is the lengthened shadow of one man." Each of you, in one way or another, will be shaping an institution, even, if you will, the institution we call our society. The true test of our effectiveness in helping to educate you, and of your ability to assimilate the ideas, the attitudes and the values that we have tried to make important to you will come as you measure the length of your shadow of influence on the world of the future. That is what education is all about.

ACTIVITIES

Man is indeed a social creature as was proven at the 1966 Senior Supper. On December 10, 1966, about 400 odd seniors gathered in the gym, under the shade of a fanciful lollipop tree, to find out exactly what "happiness is."

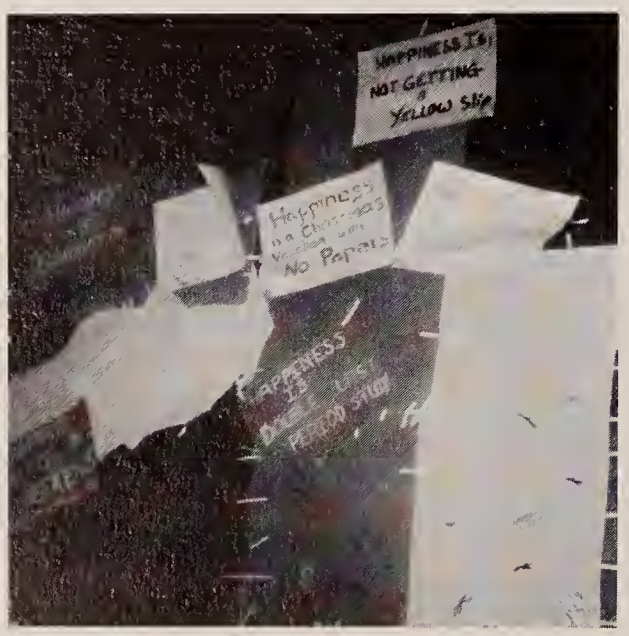

They began their investigation by filling themselves with roast beef, salad and other assorted goodies served in buffet style. After the great line up and after proper time had been allowed for digestion, the seniors looked to the stage for entertainment. The lights dimmed, the curtains parted, the audience held its breath and . . . out walked President McEvoy cradling a bunch of carnations. He called out three smiling young ladies from the dark depths of backstage. Why, they were none other than committee chairmen, Judy Martenson, Nancy Rosenberg, and Toby Stone who each received a flower for their efforts. Then, blast-off on a take-off of a take-off (of a take-off?) of "Funny Flickers" sponsored by new and fantastic corporations such as "Killcream" which featured a giant squirt of hair tonic crawling inconspicuously around the stage. Then, on to a "typical day" at NHS starring the seven dwarfs who, decked out in their finest pillowcases, did their rendition of a girls' gym class. The scene switched quickly to the girls' room where a misguided young man sang "I Feel Pretty" while drooling over his image in the mirror.

The next bit of entertainment was the presentation of slides taken around the hallowed halls of NHS. Oops! Someone had lost the tape of synchronized music that went with the slides. Never fear, President McEvoy, whose motto is "be prepared," improvised some lovely background music while an infamous member of the audience incessantly called out, "Take it off, Millie!" When the slides came to an end, someone gave a signal, and "there was light!"

So, upward and onward to better things. The newly formed Newton High jugband, a rejected bunch of the Salvation Army band, played an old familiar (?) tune. Next, a short folksong was followed by mass hysteria—i.e. "organized" square dancing. The seniors certainly proved that they were no squares in attempting to dance. They formed lovely triangles, hexagons and even octogons, but not a single square could be found. The tired caller finally crawled to the door, and, suddenly, the loud familiar laughing of a drum and the twanging of electric guitars rang out—a chain reaction of spastic attacks spread throughout the room; the seniors began to dance. Miss Krebs, Mr. Guzzi, and Mr. Satterthwaite joined in to prove that teachers are human after all.

Around 11:30 the seniors began a mass exodus toward home. They hurried away lest they be changed into pumpkins, but I heard them exclaim ere they drove out of sight, "Happiness is the Senior Supper all right!"

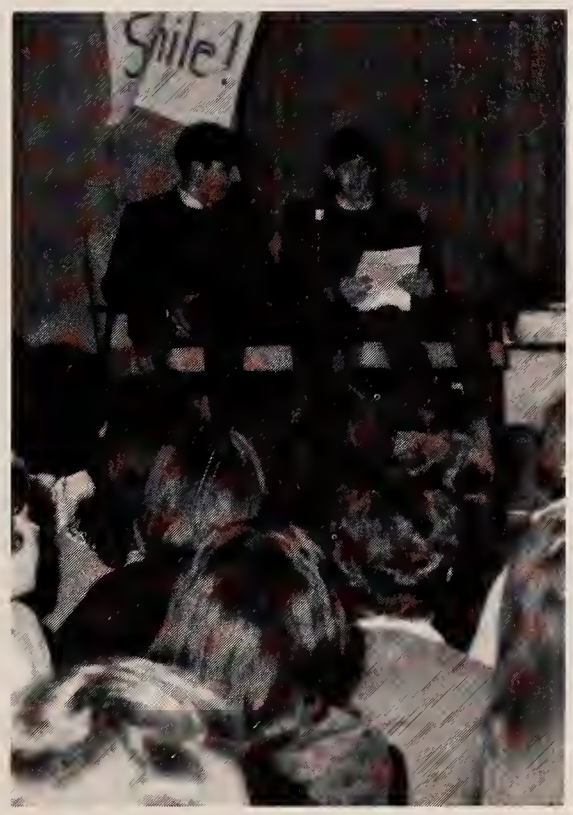

You're a senior, on top of the heap, until you realize that the juniors know what they're doing next year.

Smile!

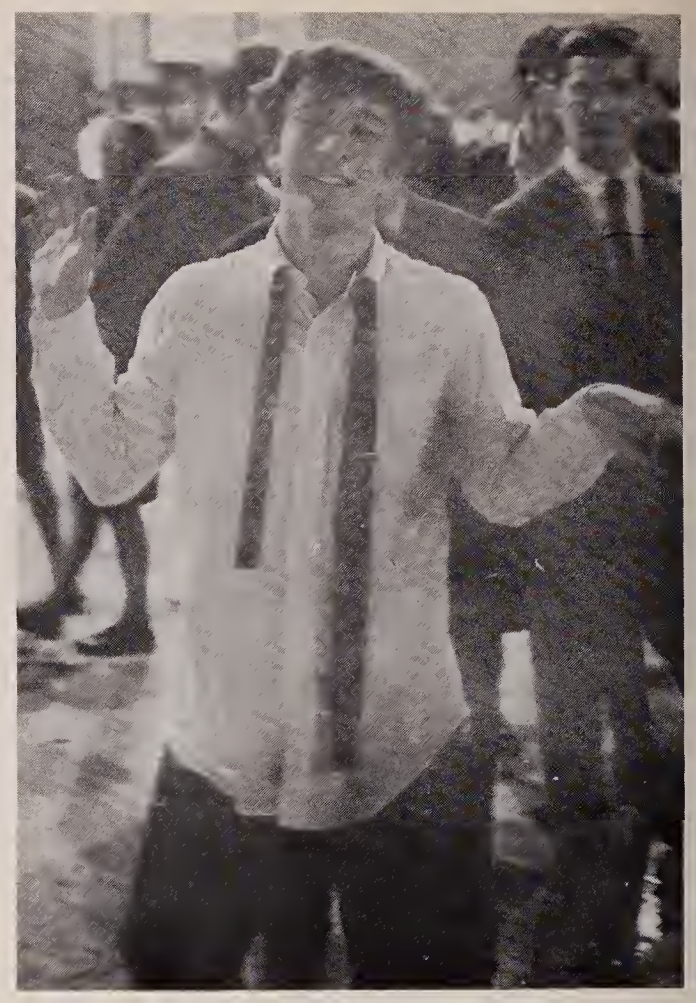

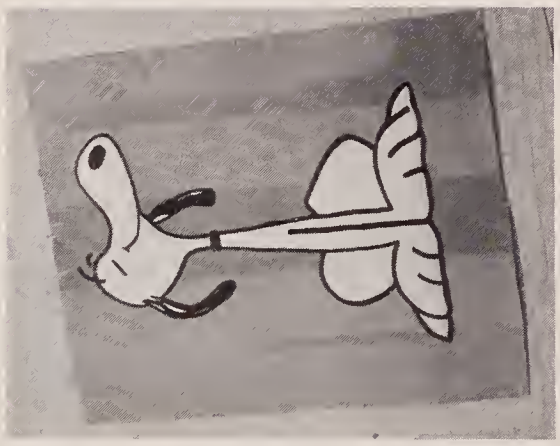

JUNIOR BREAKFAST

"Come and get it!" On November 24, 1966, better known as Turkey Day, the ambitious Junior Class, through a touch of magic converted the drill shed into another version of an NHS cafeteria, and breakfast was served. Hundreds of cups of coffee and dozens of doughnuts were sold to hungry students who filled themselves up in an effort to build up enough strength to cheer the Tigers on to victory against Brookline.

Obviously the students did gain enough bodily strength and lung power to rouse the team to a sensational win. Our thanks to the Junior Class!

The theatrical season at NHS opened with six sketches from A Thurber Carnival. All six scenes were characterized by a sense of fantasy and wry humor that are James Thurber trademarks. Some scenes were spoken, others were pantomimed with narration.

The sets, designed under the supervision of Miss Gorton and Mr. Prevoir, consisted mainly of necessary furniture enlivened with colorful detail such as military uniforms and empty bottles in "If Grant had Been Drinking at Appomattox," and an imaginative tree in "The Little Girl and Mr. Wolf." The action was accented by music from the Steve Tanimoto jazz combo.

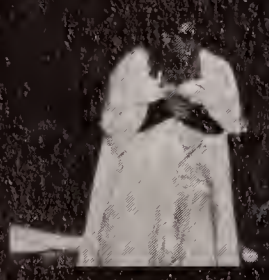

A large cast participated, directed by Mrs. Paluska, and the faithful stagecrew did their share of work under the supervision of Mr. Chase.

The Prospector, the President, and the Baron plot to tear down Paris and exploit the oil deposits beneath it.

The scheme is temporarily halted when Pierre, the Prospector's agent, fails to blow up a government building and tries to drown himself out of shame and despair.

The waiter and Irma, the waitress, of Chez Francis, revive Pierre who, if the truth be known, never hit the water. Irma is entranced by the young man.

The Countess Aurelia, the Madwoman of Chaillot, now takes command of the action. She convinces Pierre that life is really worth living despite the materialistic plots of the Prospector and his cohorts.

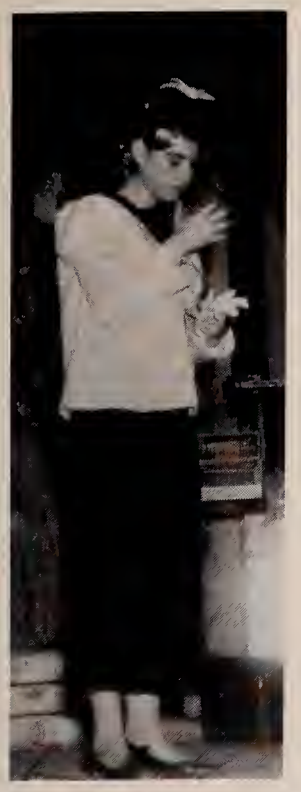

The Ragpicker, the Flower Girl, and Irma, a few of the poor, gentle people of Paris, watch the Countess. Their distress inspires her to create a counter-plot—to destroy the Prospector, the President, the Baron, and the other evil people of the city.

At home, in her dark and mysterious cellar, Countess Aurelia devises her plan. She calls upon the aid of the Sewerman who shows her the secret entrance to the sewers. To conclude her plans, the Countess invites her three friends to tea: Mme. Constance, the Madwoman of Passy; Mlle. Gabrielle, the Madwoman of Sulpice; Mme. Josephine, the Madwoman of La Concorde.

Mme. Constance

Mme. Josephine

Mlle. Gabrielle

Constance and Gabrielle arrive together. They are accompanied by Constance's imaginary dog, Dickie, and several of Gabrielle's friends—none of whom anyone can see. The three Madwomen decide that the Prospector and other unsavory characters should be tried for greed and materialism. The arrival of Mme. Constance, an expert on law, confirms the plans.

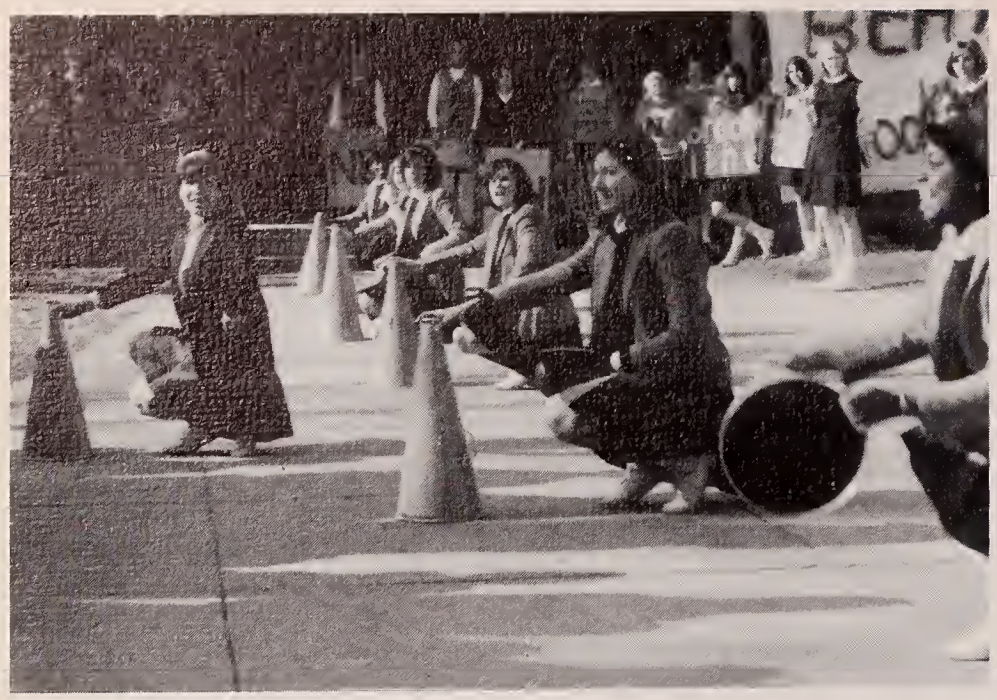

All the people of the streets—the Deaf-Mute, the Flower Girl, the Street Singer, the Shoelace Peddler—attend the trial. The Ragpicker acts as counsel for the defense. His brilliant speech ends in a damning conviction.

One by one, groups of financiers, journalists, and Ladies of the Night, arrive at the cellar, lured by the smell of oil. Now that they have been convicted, the Countess ushers them down the steps to the sewer—and oblivion.

As the Countess closes the door to the cellar, the threat of destruction and materialism vanishes. Paris rises in rejoicing as the simple people thank the Madwoman. The birds sing and the people dance. The genius of the Madwoman has saved the land.

Stand up and cheer for Newton men.

Adams House, in addition to being the smallest house in the school, is also the busiest. One quick look at the congested halls would be adequate proof of this fact, but if a student goes so far as to attempt to walk through the packed corridors, he'll come out glad that "Ban takes the worry out of being close." Students are naturally drawn to the first two floors of Building I because they include such enticing spots as the school library, the art rooms, and the infamous blue grotto. In addition, the commons room has always welcomed foreigners, non-Adams House students, and is, therefore, usually overflowing with students who help to create a friendly, though frenzied, atmosphere.

The abundance of activities attests to the never stagnant character of the house. This year, as in the past five years, the lively Adams House football team has won the intramural championship, never giving other houses a chance to taste victory. Its newspaper, the patriarch of house newspapers, is, according to loyal members of its staff, "better than the Newtonite!" The paper has been issued more than once a month this year. Adams House displayed its generosity this year by devoting two of its activities to helping others: it remained a loyal parent to an orphan whom it has been supporting for the past five years, and it started the noble tradition of presenting a $300 scholarship to a worthy senior.

Directing the two-way traffic through the bottleneck at the dangerous Adams intersections, and regulating the many house activities has required much skill and hard work on the part of the House Council and Housemaster. Housemaster Easson, not content to remain behind his desk all day, demonstrates a personal interest in all the activities of the House by turning up in classes and at athletic events. He is aided in his office work by secretaries, Mrs. Lenox and Mrs. Taplin. Meanwhile, Council President Rennie Cullman, playing the part of "king bee" in this hive of activity, helped to organize and keep track of this year's events.

Barry House will always be remembered as the house that suffered the loss of two candy machines in one year and still came out smiling. Yes, Barry House represents the real tiger spirit in its happiest form.

Early this year, under the leadership of President Robert Graceffa, the House Council invaded the deepest, darkest jungles of Africa to hunt down the rare long-tailed tiger. After trapping a few hundred tigers, members of the council transported the tails back to good old NHS where they were sold at re'tail' prices to the students. They also brought back one stuffed tiger, bagged by Mr. Graceffa himself, which was raffled off at the end of the year. In addition, the council again sold their traditional Barry House keys and membership cards. Word is out that this year's keys open a safe on the fourth story of a bank exactly 25.8 miles northeast of Tuckahoe, New Jersey.

The council has also made sure that its members were entertained. On December 15, 1966, it sponsored a Barry House Talent Show which starred the glamorous Liz Tyler, Toby Stone, Patty Newman, and Jean Shapiro among others. Five days later, the untiring house sponsored an all-school Christmas party. In May the council expects a great comeback with the annual Barry House picnic followed by a June beach party at the end of the year.

The far-reaching activity of Barry House has been stimulated by Housemaster, Manson Hall who has retained a liberal and generous attitude toward the students. He is supported by kindly assistant Housemaster, Miss Jewett, and House secretaries, Mrs. Kenney and Mrs. Moat who give out detention notices, though ruefully.

Finally, the Barry House tiger places his thinking cap squarely on his head as he enters the classroom and happily discovers that the faculty of the House has also captured much of his lively spirit. For instance, he may see the famous Mr. Schwartz in the midst of demonstrating a typical Bushman dance very similar to modern rock and roll, or he may meet lively members of the English, Math, or Language departments trying to spark their students' interests through their own enthusiasm. In connection with the faculty, the council sponsored a Student-Teacher Day for which worthy students were elected "teacher for a day" in order to learn how the other half lives.

Thus, the much sought after tiger spirit has found a permanent home in Barry House, making the second floor of Building I a popular and thriving place.

assistant Housemaster, what you want—getting frustrated? Here comes Housemaster Adams smiling his way into the room with his NHS megaphone in hand. He is always willing and, more important, able to help anyone who needs advice. When he approves of what the students want, Mr. Adams does all he can to see that they get it.

The students seem to identify with the warm, friendly atmosphere of Beals House. Listening in on a typical Beals House afternoon, students can hear rising voices coming from the direction of the NEWTONITE Office as well as across the hall in the Newton Plan Office. On the fourth floor, in 1408, students can hear members of the Human Rights Club discussing some controversial topic while members of the Future Teachers Club march through the halls searching for an empty room in the House to hold a meeting. Downstairs, cheers of triumph from the Chess Club are almost drowned out by the singing and guitar playing of the Folksinging Club in the commons room. Projectors whirl in 1350 as the Film Festival presents a movie to an eager audience. A phone is now heard ringing in Mr. Adams' office. These are all the sounds of home to a Beals House student.

Riley House means business. If you enter the side door of Building II nearest the athletic field, you will find yourself in the midst of one of the biggest business corporations going: the NHS Tiger Cage. Or enter Building II through the center door, and you will find yourself in front of the glass enclosed Bursar's office and the smiling face of Mrs. Ginsberg who is ready to help you with your financial problems. Or walk through the halls on the second floor, and you feel as if you are walking through the offices of A. T. & T. The sound of a hundred or so typewriters going at once is almost frightening, but it means business is in the making.

Miss Johnson, with the help of her efficient staff (Mr. Boyle, assistant House Master, Mrs. Chartier and Mrs. Boyd, Secretaries), tries to run Riley House in a fashion which sets an example for such a business-oriented house. This may mean strict disciplinary procedures, but it also means that Miss Johnson is able to organize her time effectively so that she can talk to many of the students in Riley House and their teachers. She keeps track of all the students, publishing a "Who's Who in Riley House" which tells of the accomplishments of Riley House students in other areas of high school life. She also keeps an alumni register and a Riley House is also the home of the music department which does its share of selling candy for the band and tickets for school musicals. Under the leadership of President Wendy Kaplan, the Riley House Council has undertaken several money making ventures. K-Block coffee hours have raised money for a contribution to the Newton Community Christmas Service Committee. During December the council sponsored a Christmas party and sold candy canes. Riley House has also hosted the minister-cartoonist, Dr. Palmquist, and the Harvard University Band. Business propositions for the future include raising funds to redecorate the Commons room.

PALMER·HOUSE

An inquisitive student wanders aimlessly through Building II until —lo and behold!—He finds himself in a new world, different from any part of Newton High. After trying to figure out just how he got there, he manages to find enough of his voice to stammer, "Wh-where am I?" Any "Palmer Prodigy" could tell him that he's in the annex (the WHAT) part of Palmer House. ("Oh, you mean I'm still in NHS?") Besides its annex, Palmer House contains the science department, the driver's ed. room, the home economics rooms, and the language lab. The Commons Room boasts the only baby grand piano and picture of Santa (Mr. Gradone) Claus in the entire school. Yes, our wanderer is still in NHS, but the mixture of different classes and activities, makes it a unique part of the school.

Palmer House has the fortunate distinction of having an enthusiastic House Council which sponsors a great many activities. The Council, under the leadership of Richard Martin (President), Russell Berman (Vice President), Karen Sacks (Secretary), and Andy Rosenberg (Treasurer), has accomplished much this year. They've sponsored a party for the sophomores, a hootenanny with the Folksinging Club, and a free Christmas party for Palmerites; they've fixed up the Commons Room, shown old Charlie Chaplain movies, and established a House newspaper—the Palmer Press. A spring picnic is being planned.

"I'm very proud of Palmer House," says Housemaster, Mr. Gradone. And he has good reason to be. "The House with a Heart," as Palmer House is called, is traditionally dedicated to helping people. This year the Palmer House Council started a nickel drive and collected enough money to send $25 Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners to needy families. As in past years, they plan to donate money to the Peabody Home and the check will be presented at the final House assembly.

The Palmer Prodigy Assembly in the spring is also a Palmer House tradition. Trophies are given to outstanding seniors for scholarships, athletics, and civics. The Senior Last Will and Testament, read at the assembly, reflects a year of friendships, activities, and escapades. At this point the juniors and sophomores assert themselves. Candidates for next year's Council read their campaign speeches. A new generation follows in the traditional prodigal Palmer footsteps.

At first glance, Bacon House seems to be unchanged. Its students are those same lucky people who have the advantage of working in one unified building without the confusing situation of two or three houses. They are still in the only house in which they are close to the Nurse, Cafeteria, Auditorium, Main Office, Girls and Boys Gyms, Placement, Guidance, and Records Offices all at the same time. The same Baconites, traditionally plagued with D-lunch, continue to consider last lunch an advantage, explaining that the day ends more quickly when lunch time arrives later.

Yes, Bacon House with all of its physical advantages looks the same this year as in the past, but a study of its activities reveals that it is really a house going through change. Bacon House, this year, has been seeking new enthusiasm, house spirit and pride, and more participation on the part of the students in order to further develop its individuality. The House's new ideal was demonstrated at the Council's Christmas party which was not only a financial success, but also a success in student participation. New and hopeful additions to the Bacon House activities were discussed by the House Council, under the leadership of President Michael Vengrow. Some changes and future plans are: A Bacon House sponsored Student-Faculty baseball game and the presentation of one-act plays by Baconites. The Council realized that any transition is difficult to achieve.

Every Bacon House student knows, however, that some things never should or will change. Bacon House will always be known as the initiator of the Coffee/Donut sales held in the commons room before school. It was the first house to administer coffee, hot chocolate, and fresh donuts to sleepy-eyed breakfast missers and send them happily on their way. This practice will probably continue until there are no more sleepy-eyed students—in other words, forever. Also, the lovely duo, Miss Ryan, Housemaster, and Miss Burke, Secretary, are still sitting in their offices, ready to befriend or terrorize the many students whom they must deal with from day to day. Meanwhile, Mrs. Geiger, House Aide, continues to "hear voices."

Undeniably, Bacon House is on the wing and, trying to appreciate its advantages, has been working hard to develop a new and brighter character of its own.

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

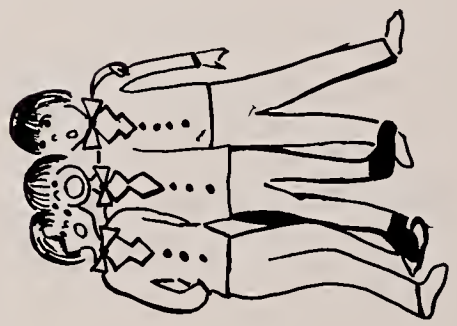

Sounds of

Newton High demonstrates its creativity in musical excellence. You can hear the wonderful sounds of music at Music Club assemblies planned under the supervision of Mr. Lasker, or at special concerts given by members of the orchestra, band, and various singing groups who have spent their class time preparing to perform.

This year, if you happened to wander into auditorium during a Music Club X-block, you were probably surprised by the variety of sounds that came from the stage. On one occasion your mind was sweetly awakened by the sensitive playing of Peter Zazoffsky, twelve year old violin prodigy. On another occasion, student-composer Ken Werner and Mr. Alvin Lucier of the Slosberg Music Center, Brandeis, gave you a good strong taste of electronic music.

Music

On December 15 you might have walked into the gym to be greeted by the Orchestra, the A. Capella Choir, and the Concert Band presenting the December Musicale. No doubt Mr. March's meticulous style and Miss Seaver's encouraging smiles impressed you as you watched them conduct the combined orchestra and choir in performing three pieces from Vivaldi's "Gloria," or perhaps you were struck by Mr. Cobb's seemingly uncontainable energy in directing a piece written solely for the drums. (William's Concerto for Percussion and Band.) The enlivened faces of the performers were witness to the strength of the music which they performed—the sound was magnificent.

The club exists at Newton High simply because the students want it to. Knowing this, one could drag out a psychiatrist's couch and poke around in the brains of the students to see why they form and join various clubs. Before long, however, our poor doctor, having discovered many reasons ranging from the most healthy to the most sickly, and having examined clubs ranging from the most vigorous to those which are barely breathing, will probably throw up his hands and cry, "Why, it's useless!" He will have learned that the formation of clubs follows no prescription—the only important fact is that by joining certain clubs each member satisfies some need, whether it be to visit with his friends after school, study in depth something of interest to him, or to get into college.

Newton High has well over thirty clubs which can be broken down into seven categories: science clubs, political and historical clubs, artistic clubs, language clubs, service organizations, career or special interest clubs, and fun clubs.

The scientific clubs could very easily be called the clubs of the elite: members of these clubs are the Einsteins of tomorrow. The famous MATH TEAM spent its time this year with very select friends discussing topics such as the angle of the school flag pole in relation to the squared inverse of the cube root of the area of someone's front tooth. The team spent the rest of its time at inter-school competitions such as with Boston Latin whom it tied. Having chosen equally special members by an examination, the CHEMISTRY CLUB proceeded to perform countless "controlled sequences of observations," better known as experiments to all non-chemistry students. The highlight of this year's activities was an annual picnic in the Blue Hills to which each member brought 5.32 test tubes of food for lunch. Meanwhile, members of the BIOLOGY CLUB heard speakers, took field trips, helped with Science Night, worked out plans for a Latoral Society, and planted trees around the glorious NHS grounds. Word just leaked out that their next project will be painting

If scientific clubs largely represent an elite group of students, the politically and historically oriented clubs represent the most controversial figures around NHS. One of the most active clubs in this category is the DEBATING SOCIETY whose function according to President Grossman is "to debate." This year's question of debate was "Resolved: that U. S. Foreign Aid Should be limited to Non-Military Assistance." This year's motto was "we oughta be in pictures—" more specifically on Channel 5 debating this year's topic. The most controversial club in this group is the HUMAN RIGHTS CLUB which could best be described as a precocious child. Only in its third year, the club has gained school-wide fame through its massive and far-reaching activities which included discussion on Black Power, tutoring in Roxbury, discussions and films on Vietnam, and work projects for housing rehabilitation. An even younger club that has gained recognition is the PHILOSOPHY CLUB which was formed this year. Under the leadership of President Sharon Rooney and with the aid of an able-minded Crimson Man, the members of the club met informally to discuss almost anything that came into their heads, and a lot of things obviously did. The INTERNATIONAL CLUB's biggest project this year, besides keeping alive, was sending eight representatives to a Model U.N. in Washington, D.C.—"Tell Mr. President we've come to call."

NHS's artistic clubs probably represent some of the most creative people in the school. There is usually specific talent among members of this group. For those who enjoy singing and playing the guitar, the FOLKSINGING CLUB provides them with the opportunity to perform in front of a sympathetic audience. The highlight of the year's activities was a concert given at Newton High by a nationally famous folksinger. Dancers find their special outlet of expression in ORCHESIS, headed this year by Joyce Kovacs. Both beginners and advanced dancers study the technical as well as the creative parts of dance. This year the girls have performed at four assemblies.

The stage struck element of NHS has again united to form the DRAMA CLUB. Members of this club discuss plays and various acting techniques. They learn to be confident and skilled hams. Lastly, potential film makers and plain old film enjoyers watch the bulletin for notices concerning the FILM FESTIVAL. This year, under student head Bruce Hambro, this club has shown several 45 minute films during X blocks and Hitchcock's "The Birds" after school, as well as discussing film making techniques with interested members.

Clubs that draw an extremely large number of people are the language clubs. The language club meetings could be said to represent NHS students in their own Little France, Little Germany, Little Spain Little Russia, and Little Roman Empire (!?)—how little depends on what room the club meets in. This year, Little France's main tourists attractions were speakers, movies, slides, and a visit to a french restaurant. No can-can dancers, mais c'est la vie! Meanwhile, Little Germany preached a simple doctrine of having fun—in German of course! Speakers were stimulating." Finally, the RUSSIAN CLUB, in keeping with the country it represents, has kept its activities somewhat of a secret.

The service clubs at NHS can be said to represent the most virtuous students, if service is indeed man's greatest virtue. HOMEROOM MANAGERS head the list of service organizations. These iron-nerved people help their poor homeroom teachers in their eleventh hours—bless them! Then, there are the LIBRARY ASSISTANTS who have helped to create the tomb-like atmosphere of the school library so conducive to study. Members of ORANGE SHIELD, however, have the job of requiring the most diplomacy: they must referee and judge all of those infamous food fights for which NHS's cafeteria will gain national fame. The most gallant service club is the National Society of Chivalry, better known as ORANGE KEY. Members have performed their mundane functions such as slaying fiery dragons and saving damsels in distress. At the same time, the notorious STAGE CREW served the school by doing all of the dirty work that goes into dramatic productions. So that's what goes on back stage. . . . The last service club, the RED CROSS CLUB, helps the needy community rather than the needy school. Its main activities have been helping with community Bloodmobiles, tutoring grade school pupils, and preparing boxes of school supplies to be shipped to Vietnam.

Unfortunately, NHS doesn't offer career or special interest clubs for doctors, lawyers, and indian chiefs, but there are enough clubs of this type to satisfy most students. The most well-established career club is the FUTURE TEACHERS' CLUB. Members of this club, led by President Naomi Berkowitz, have been planning a revolution to overthrow the present faculty and step into its place. In contrast to this old-timer, the HOME ECONOMICS CLUB still sits in its cradle. Meanwhile, members of the INVESTMENT CLUB spent their time at the Boston stock exchange raking in the millions—great fun idea! Though perhaps not as rich, the members of the RADIO CLUB had a great time studying the short wave radio. If you heard someone interrupting your favorite radio program, it was probably just an NHS Radio Club nut on his short wave. Lastly, Andrea Barron headed the MENTAL HEALTH CLUB whose membership is limited to juniors and seniors—sophomores not yet unstabilized by the NHS climate. The club had speakers every month plus occasional field trips to hospitals.

"School can be fun." This is a possible motto for the fun clubs at NHS which are organizations formed to help the student to smile once again. The two games clubs in this category are the BRIDGE CLUB. and the CHESS CLUB. At meetings of the Bridge Club, uproarious cries of "Defeat South" rose up among the members while at the Chess Club meetings, sedate smiles crossed the faces of the NHS team as it planned an attack against schools such as Brookline High. Meanwhile, President Donald Worth and other members of the SAILING CLUB looked for red sails in the sunset around Marblehead Harbor, and members of the OUTING CLUB promoted physical fitness beyond the call of duty

American Field Service

American Field Service President Alix Myerson, Vice President Becky Cort, Secretary Pam Friedman, and Treasurer Janet Levy have worked hard this year to make the NHS Chapter of AFS as exciting as it has been in past years.

First of all, in keeping with the original purpose of the organization, which is to promote peace by sponsoring foreign students abroad, Newton High's Chapter of AFS welcomed Carlos Kohan from Argentina and Barbara Patzak from Germany into the school. AFSers also saw it in their hearts to welcome five non-AFSers to Newton High: Ruchia Mohammed Alibos from the Somali Republic, Yang Pal Lee from Korea, Antonio and Enrico DiMambro from Italy and Ziv Fox from Israel also spent this year with us groping through the dark halls which do so much to contribute to the homey atmosphere of NHS.

This year AFS also sent one good-will package of American culture overseas in the shape of Miss Bonnie Bell who has spent her senior year with a family of six in West Germany.

The organization, with the aid of Mr. Gaudet and Miss Dellmuth, sponsored activities based on the theme: getting to know you is fun. The most exciting events of the year were the Student Exchange Day and the annual Coffeehouse. Both of these activities included small intimate dinners to which club members and foreign students from greater Boston schools were invited, followed by large "come one come all" dances which featured hysterically happy students running frantically around in circles trying to master folk dances—"No, it's not clap, clap, step, stomp; but stomp, stomp, clap, step." Meanwhile, committee members dragged in box after box and case after case of doughnuts and coke for the hungry crowd.

Alix and her organization also undertook smaller ventures this year such as having occasional meetings to show slides and listen to guest speakers.

Aachen, Germany

Frau Gindorff owned a small bakery around the corner from the Kaiser-Karls Gymnasium near the center of Aachen, where we 27 Americans had classes five days a week. Patronizing Frau Gindorff's Backerei was only one of the cultural activities of the American Association of Teachers of German Summer Institute for High School Students in Germany. The director of the program was Mr. Richard A. Clark.

The group left Logan Airport on June 30, 1966, and arrived in Frankfurt on July 1st. We then transferred to another plane to Cologne and rode by bus to Aachen. On the bus Mr. Clark made the first of many decrees: "Enjoy yourselves now, but remember—as soon as you're off the bus, no English!"

Once in Aachen, there was a short reception at the KKG (Kaiser-Karls Gymnasium), where we met the families with whom we were to stay for six weeks. It still was not easy to convince ourselves that we simply could not speak English to these people; anyway, they had been forewarned to speak only German to us, no matter how frustrated we became. This was part of the "cultural shock" we had been warned about before we left.

Slowly, we became accustomed to the new culture in which we found ourselves. Discussions and lectures in class encouraged us to speak more freely. Visits to the Suermondt and Couven Museums, a boat trip down the Rhine and Saturday afternoon bus trips into the Eifel forest and neighboring Belgium were planned. Aachen was so situated that it was possible to travel by streetcar or bus up to the Dutch and Belgian borders. From there, one could take a bus to go further into the border cities. Although Aachen, a city of about 180,000 is not as large a city as, say, Munich or Berlin, there were many summer concerts and theater productions.

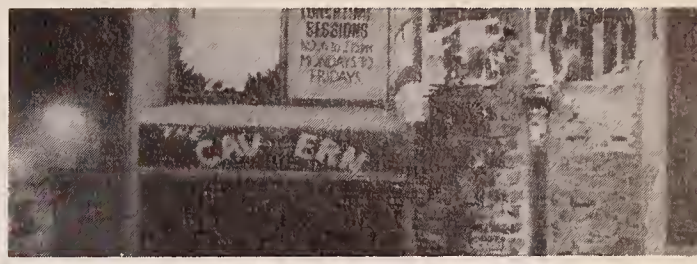

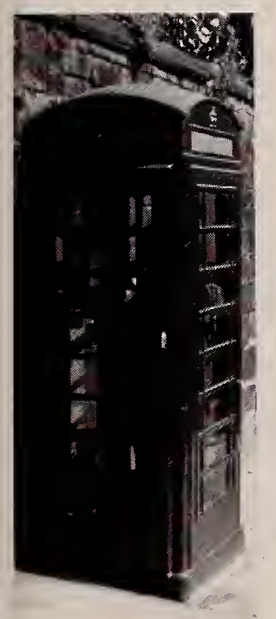

The "highlight" of the program was our stay in Berlin, where our luxury accomodations consisted of rooms for six or eight in a Youth Hostel. What made the biggest impression upon us, though, was our bus tour into East Berlin—a complete change from the bright lights of the Kurfuerstendamm, West Berlin's main street.

All were convinced that the program was a complete success: it established lasting connections between two different cultures, removed many preconceived notions adopted by both Americans and Germans, and certainly greatly improved our speaking ability in a foreign language by immersing us totally in that language and in its traditional culture. The success was great enough to encourage Mr. Clark to make definite plans for the 1967 Summer Institute in Aachen and to think optimistically about opening other Institutes in the future.

The International Club went International this summer. Under the direction of Mr. John Livingston and Miss Elizabeth Massey, thirty NHS'ers left Boston for London on June 30, 1966.

The exchange, sponsored in part by the Experiment in International Living, saw the NHS'ers live with English famliies for three weeks in Stockport, a suburb of Manchester. In turn, the NHS'ers hosted English students for three weeks. What the Newtonites did in Stockport depended upon what their host families thought Americans should eat, smell, feel and see of English life. But the memories the NHS'ers share are those of the days spent as a group in Oxford, Stratford and London.

Oxford, their first stop, reminded some of Harvard (and others of Yale). Many of them climbed the bell tower of St. Mary's Church on "the High," the Church always seen on postcards of Oxford. Some slept the sleepless flight and time change off on a grassy bank of the Isis River, on the grounds of Magdalen College.

On a trip with typical NHS'ers there were bound to be happenings. The first happened in Oxford. Meeting Mr. Livingston and Miss Massey, the students were told of a 21th century pub on the outskirts of Oxford. About two dozen started out on a trek that led through a meadow, over a bridge, along a river bank path frequented more often by cows (which they saw) than by people, to the Trout, a story-book like English pub some three miles out of the city. By that time the group had dwindled to nine. A very thirsty nine. Why, they later asked, had they safaried so far to visit the Trout. To have lasted for 800 years, came the reply, it must be doing something right.

They traveled next to Stratford-Upon-Avon, where there was another happening. It was July 4th. They had tickets for HENRY IV, part i. After the play, they marched across the theater grounds, bellowing YANKEE DOODLE, and dumped a pound of tea into the Avon River. They left quickly, fearing the police would suspect them of attempting to poison the swans.

After the Stockport stay, the group journeyed to London, where there were more happenings. Some (the hardier of them) climbed the 611 stairs to the top of St. Paul's Cathedral. Most all visited the British Museum, Trafalger Square, Carnaby Street, Westminster Abbey, 10 Downing Street (where Miss Massey saw Prime Minister Wilson—"very good looking," she told us), Soho, and Parliament, where some attended a session. Then, too, there was the changing of the guard, the tower of London, and the Crown Jewels. Picadilly Circus was the standard meeting place, from where they set out each night to enjoy London's night life.

They arrived back in Boston July 30, an hour late. They had "stood up" the plane for twenty minutes in London. Some had hoped that the plane would leave without them —they were quite willing to make the International Club's summer exchange a permanent one.

STUDENT COUNCIL

If you happened to pass by Mr. Mechem's office this year, chances are that you saw Student Council President David Hirshberg, Vice President David Kennedy, Recording Secretary Debby Sheehan, Corresponding Secretary Joanne Glickman, and Treasurer Jeff Spear sitting in a neat row around the all-important desk and moving their mouths in discussion. As an outcome of much mouth moving, the Council created the controversial and highly selective Student Curriculum Review Board, who spent the year dreaming of abolishing grades—at NHS?

The Council's other activities have been the sponsoring of an Alumni Day for "homesick" college students and a NHS-NSHS faculty basketball game. The Council's greatest accomplishment was the printing of this year's Merit Cards in the newest and most fashionable pastel shades.

At the time of this writing, however, the most stupendous efforts of the Council have yet to take place. A "Great Escape" is planned for March, and if the members get back in time, the generous and rich Council is sponsoring the Spring Musical.

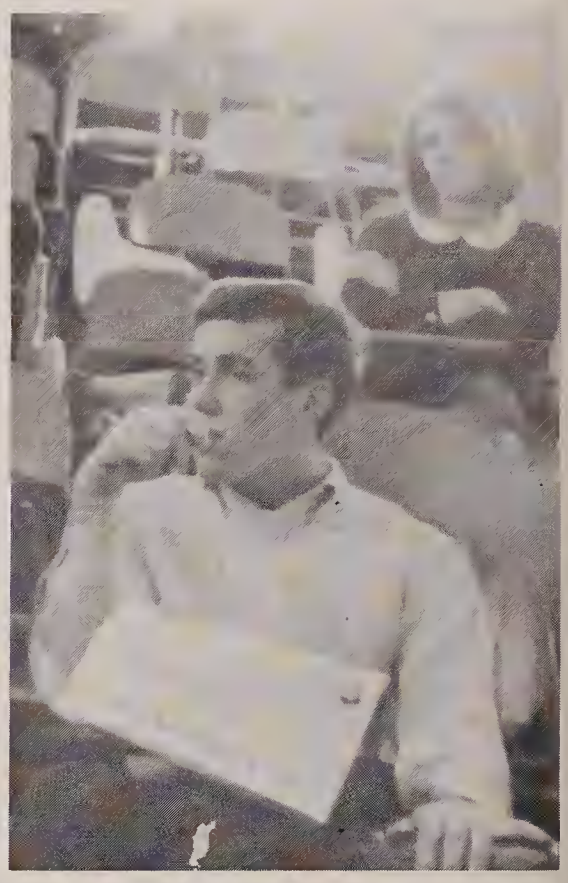

"The student Council is now working on the grass problem."

SENIOR CLASS COMMITTEE

Owing to the kindness and generosity of Miss Krebs and Mr. Guzzi, the Senior Class Committee has advisors this year (yes, two!). Unable to use last year's excuse, "How can we do anything? It's November and we don't have an advisor yet." President James, big sign, McEvoy had two choices; he could find a new excuse or he could plan a year full of senior events. Senior activities it was! Led by Jim and his merry band of women; Debby Burkhardt, first vice-president, Judy Martenson, second vice-president, Beth Callahan, secretary, and Sharon Carey, treasurer, the Senior Class Committee sponsored activities which introduced the class to a new and amazing phenomenon, class spirit.

The year began with a kick-off dance. The motorcade from Auburndale playground followed and helped heighten school spirit during the football season.

Fall was a busy season for the senior class.

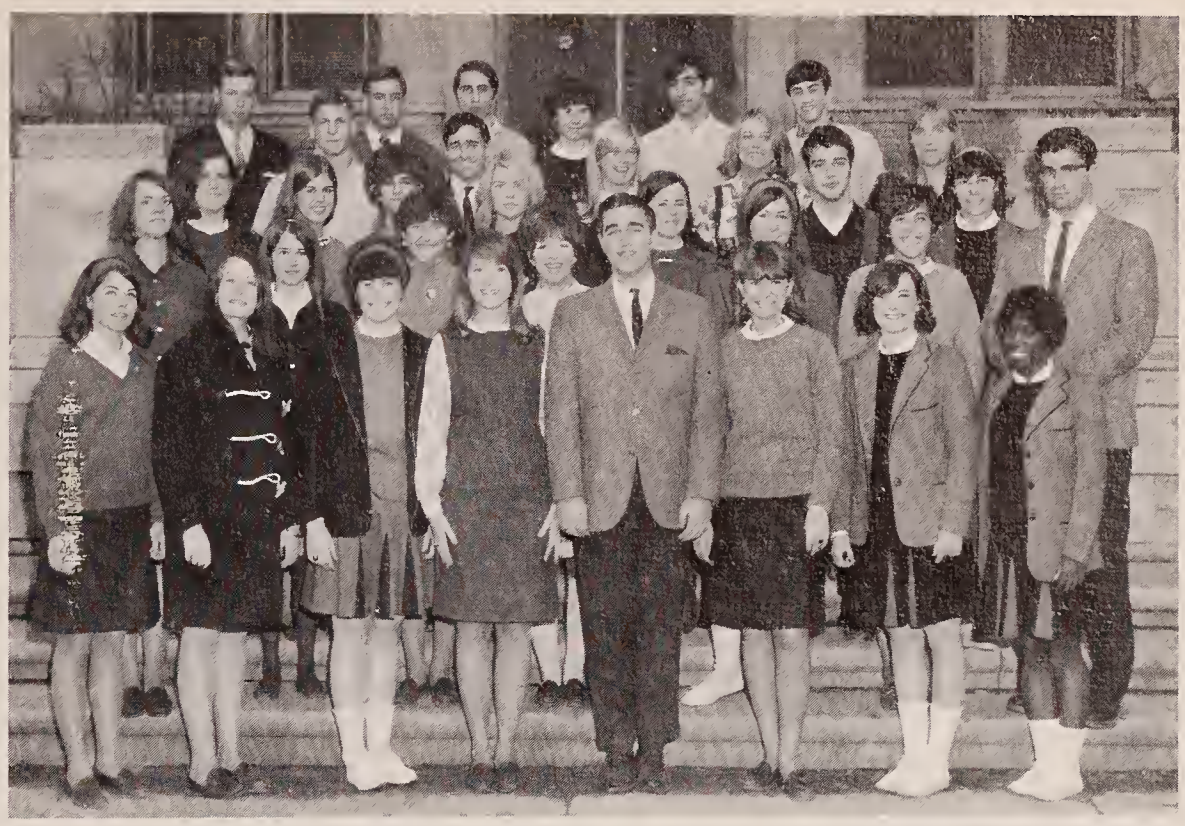

First there was the Senior Assembly, complete with three ravishing beauties, entertainment and speeches by our illustrious advisors and president. Then the committee declared November 17 a class holiday—Senior Sweatshirt and Crazy Hat Day. It was quite a colorful festival. Happiness was, according to Mr. McEvoy, supercalifragilisticexpialidociously the Senior Supper. Slides and films of the Beach Party, the school, and the Thanksgiving rally and game were shown along with the "Funny Flickers" Program and other entertainment.

There was no slumping for the Senior Class Committee. February was the date of the Senior Play. A student-faculty basketball game followed by a dance, a Senior Slob Day, and a Senior Work Day are being planned. (Did someone mention a beach party?) Last and not the least bit least, the Senior Prom is, with a bit of luck, June 5 at the Monticello's.

January brings the senior countdown; April the senior let-down.

SWEATSHIRT DAY

JUNIOR CLASS COMMITTEE

The juniors discarded all of their romantic notions as the year began. President John Ziergiebel declared that no one can live on spirit(?) alone and though money is the root of all evil, it is a very necessary evil to a business as important as running a class committee. In order to "become more evil," the Class sponsored a successful Bake Sale and a Car Wash in which the water was supplied at no cost by God—i.e. it rained.

Having made enough money to put the Class at ease, the Committee held a "Beat Brookline Breakfast" on Thanksgiving morning.

The class rings arrived only three weeks behind schedule and were distributed in "typical fashion" by the members of the Class Committee.

The biggest undertaking of the Junior Class will be the Junior Prom to be held May 19, at Chestnut Hill Country Club. Preparations for the Prom began in January.

The Class is planning two more events in the Spring. One is a Spring work-day and the other is the "Junior Jam."

Enthusiastic President John Ziergiebel, Vice President Paula Stone, Secretary Anne Mechem, and Treasurer Barbara Dangel, took the liberty of representing their Class in saying, "We are all looking forward to our Senior year."

If you think the food is bad, you must be from Newton High.

A little bit off schedule, the Sophomore Class came out of hibernation right in the middle of the winter by organizing a Sophomore Class Breakfast on January 19 in the drill shed. By means of a small-scale lottery that monring, Jay Cevetti and Shelley Fox were given the much sought-after titles of King and Queen for the day of the Class.

Some plans for the immediate future are a Computer Dance, a record hop, and the sale of '69 pins. The far-sighted committee is also starting, a year in advance, to plan for their Junior Prom.

May 11 is the date of the elections for the Junior Class Officers when this year's Chairman Iris Brass, Vice Chairman Allison Krebs, Secretary Winki Bliss, and Treasurer Howard Tarlow step down from their prestigious positions.

First Row: C. Goldfarb, J. Charbonnier, B. Daniels, N. Sullivan, A. Earthrowl. Second Row: C. Norton, A. Goodwin, A. Antonellis, H. Tarlow; Treasurer, A. Krebs; Vice Chairman, D. NEWTONITE

NEWTONITE Editor
Carl Shapiro

The 1966-67 NEWTONITE staff got off to a controversial bang last spring with "A Rose is not a Rose." Frightened of being invaded by "one of the numerous militant pacifist organizations," Editor Shapiro and Business Manager Nierman staunchly refused to print a "fraudulent" petition allegedly circulated by the Newton Chapter of S.D.S. The reprecussions were numerous, "but," as Editor Shapiro remarked, "did you notice S.D.S. hasn't dared to rear its ugly head since?!" Oh, the power of the press!

After that incident, the NEWTONITE staff quieted down and began to make plans for this year's paper. Some of the editors were upset with the plan to put out an eight page issue every two weeks. "It can't be done," they cried. But with Editor Shapiro at the helm, who "eats, drinks and sleeps NEWTONITE," the issues have come out; more or less on time. . . .

A few new things were added this year to fill-up the extra pages. First, NEWTONITE polls ranging from such problems as political elections to the pizza backlash. (Don't be surprised if you've never heard of these polls, or the results, or for that matter, the NEWTONITE. The Circulation Staff has some problems finding certain homerooms. . . .). Second, "OK's and KO's," which is followed by a stirring editorial paragraph ending, "Tell the NEWTONITE, and you've told the world." (Amen).

The NEWTONITE had two pet projects this year other than the polls. The Newton Youth Center and next year's schedule vied for the top spot. The editors finally put the latter in its proper place in the January 5 issue. There the final schedule revisions were announced. "What's so new about that?" asked starry-eyed sophomores, jolly juniors and sleepy seniors! "Nothing, you nuts, this is a SATIRE issue." "Oh."

And a fine issue it was. How generous of the NEWTONITE to dedicate an entire issue to our beloved Andrew T. Drill. Of course they made one minor mistake. Anybody knows NEWTONIAN rates more brownie points than the Newtonite.

All in all, however, the NEWTONITE did its best to maintain a good standard of journalistic writing while being published more often. More writers were added to the staff for the purpose of introducing a wide range of articles. Besides the "run-of-the-mill" news articles, there were features and editorials on civil rights, (in school and out), Vietnam, college admissions, and course changes by such talented authors as Joanne Grossman, Juris Kaza, Randy Averback, D'Vera Cohn, Ann Harrer, Herbie Levine, Marvin Olasky and other "non-byliners." Perhaps now that the juniors on this year's staff have become accustomed to publishing more often, they will continue to upgrade our school newspaper.

. . . And you've collected your brownie points and still don't know who you are.

Did you ever stop to think that the NEWTONITE costs more than the BOSTON GLOBE.

This year's Reflections' staff declared independence when it severed its final tie with Newton South. The staff no longer promised a joint issue "sometime in the near future" and even went as far as changing its name—"We are no longer Reflections," declared Editor Barbara Hurst, "we are Thoughtprints." Under the new name, the staff set out on its annual search for creative literary talent and came across more ghosts from the class of '66 than anything else. In order to supplement the depleting supply of creative work, the staff started the policy of accepting controversial editorial material for publication.

Material for the issue was chosen by the staff who sifted through the entries, picking the best pieces of work for publication. While screening the pieces, the staff reduced their authors to anonymity to prevent personal prejudice on the part of the readers. The staff, including Sharon Rooney and Ralph Crevoshay, Assistant Editors; Rebecca Cort, Publicity Editor, and Janis Jacobson, Circulation Manager, spent the year waiting for the articles to roll in because the success of Thoughtprints has always depended on the contributions of the student body. The staff did a fine job.

This year's White Book alias Orange Book rolled off the press on time to help the poor aimless sophomores find their way around the labyrinth, better known as NHS. Editor Wendy Kaplan, in addition to shocking the school with the book and supplement's covers, did a marvelous job of producing a book filled with materials with which the administration could test their new set of victims.

FOOTBALL

It's Saturday afternoon. A feeling of restlessness pervades Dickenson Stadium. There are about 5000 fans. A lot of sophomores are there. This is their first chance to show off their school spirit. The juniors are out in full force; they are somewhat acquainted with the delirium which accompanies an afternoon of football, but they are still somewhat awed by it. Then . . . there are the seniors. They are somewhat jaded by two years of seeing their team lose most of its games. The best they can muster is a feeling of guarded optimism. The fans are for the most part uniformed in blue dungarees, sweaters, and penny loafers. Definitely in evidence are the spirit organs, the famous Tiger Marching Band and the controversial pep squad. In front of the stands, the peppy Newton High cheerleaders are attempting to incite the crowd to vocal mayhem. Then the black helmeted troops take the field accompanied by the wild cheers of the fans. Cries of "Kill 'em Tigers," "Go Newton," and "Down in Front" filled the air.

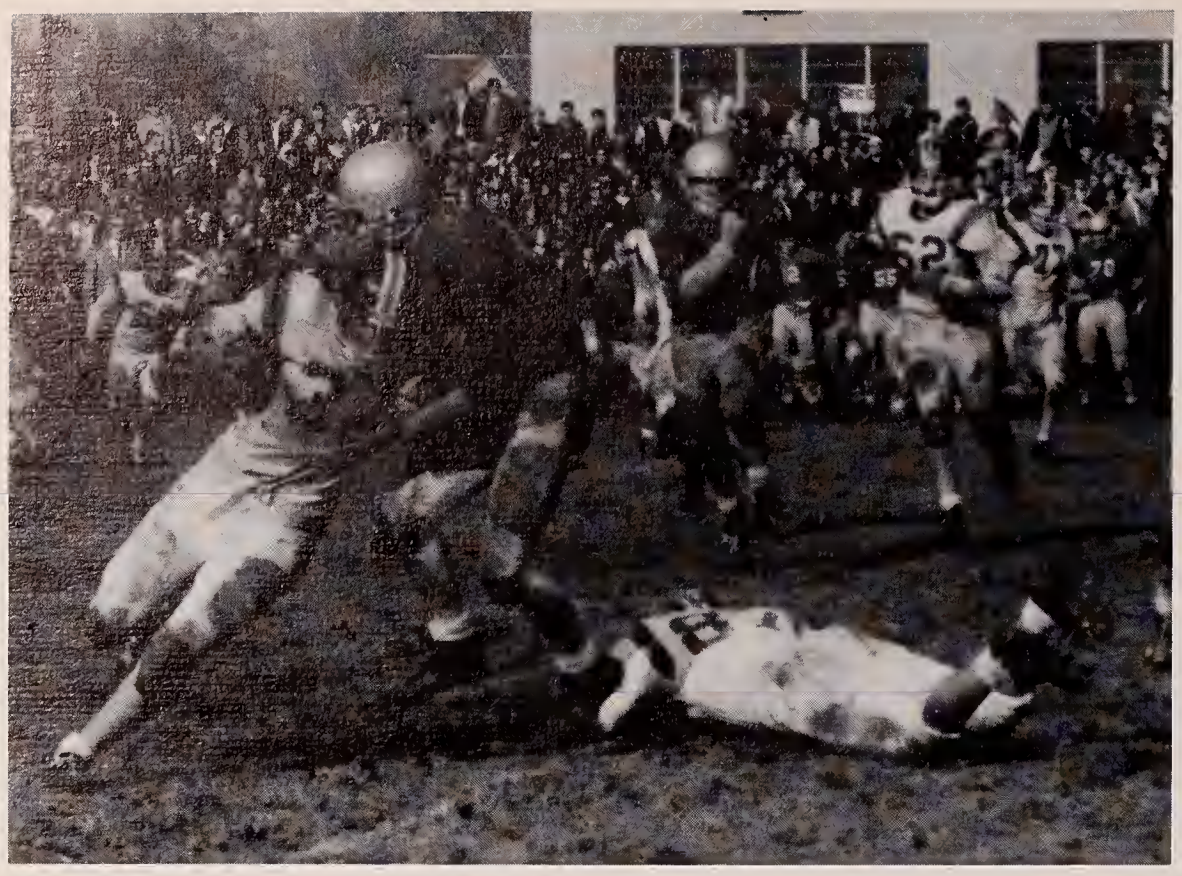

And from the start of the season there was much for the fans to cheer about. First, there was the big one against Everett. We won; we shut out Everett. It was the biggest victory for Newton High fans since Newton beat Melrose in hockey. In this game the three characteristics which were to carry Newton to a successful season were evident. First, there was the strong defense, which was to mask the team all season. This defense was spearheaded by Nierman, Riley, Steele, Distefano, McEvoy, Jones, and Lawrence up front with Thurston, Norton, Nelson, Houston and Boudreau in the secondary line. Also apparent in the victory over Everett was the most prolific pasing attack in Newton High history. This attack was led by quarterback, Rick Dezotell who, throughout the season, was able to hit his receivers, Steve Pleuler, George Gershman, Steve Steinberg, Warren Houston, Phil Nelson, and Steve Coluntuono. Then, there was the strong Newton running attack which revealed two strong new runners in Bobby Cohen and Steve Coluntuono.

After the 14-0 victory over Everett, spirit was at a high pitch for the Brockton game. And the fans were rewarded with a stunning 34-6 victory. Optimism reigned supreme. Newton now had to face a real tough opponent in Weymouth. At first, things looked good, with Newton jumping to a 6-0 lead over Weymouth. However, Newton's luck ran out as a string of bad breaks and mistakes cost them the game and gave Weymouth a 20-6 victory. After this rough loss Newton overpowered Watertown with a 20-6 victory. However, after this victory things got rough for Newton. They lost two heartbreakers—first to Medford, giving up a touchdown with less then a minute left which cost them a victory. Then they were upset by New Bedford in another close one 20-6. Next came the lowpoint of the season—a 36-12 drubbing at the hands of Arlington. This was the first and last time Newton was outclassed all season. Next on the slate was the old rivalry with Waltham. Newton dominated most of the game but nonetheless could only get a 6-6 tie. Now the season was almost over, but, as it started on a high point, it ended on one. Newton slaughtered Brookline—40-14! It was an awesome display of offensive skill and defensive power. Richie Dezotell finished off his fine season by hitting Warren Houston and Steve Pleuler for two touchdown passes each. Steve Colantuono also grabbed a Dezi T.D. pass. Bob Cohen ran for six points to complete the Newton scoring.

All in all it had been a good season. Newton compiled a fine 4-4-1 record. Even though, with a few breaks, Newton could have had 8-1, the 500 season they did compile was as good a record as a Newton High Team has had in many years.

SOCCER

Almost every sports team, upon completion of its season, is overcome with the agonizing feeling. "We could have done much better." So it was true with this year's team. They finished with an admirable 5-5 record which was good enough for third place in the State's toughest league. Yet the team's members were quite disappointed with their respectable showing. They all felt that a goal here or a break there could have made for a highly successful season and a possible berth in the State tourney.

This feeling of frustration from having an "almost" season arose from several heartbreaking losses the soccer team incurred. For, besides an opening game drubbing by Medford, Coach Hall's booters could have, with a little luck, won every game.

After the Medford loss the Tigers began an uphill battle always aiming for first place. Success, however, was slow in coming and often just out of their reach.

Their determination was not dimmed, and they went into their next game convinced that they could win. However, Newton fought bravely only to receive disappointment as a result, for Brookline squeaked by them.

After these two frustrating losses the Tigers were hungry. They no longer were denied the fruits of their work as they stormed past Newton South 4-0.

In their next game Newton spotted a perennially powerful Lincoln-Sudbury Team three goals in the opening minutes of the game. They fought back courageously but vainly to overcome this deficit. At the closing whistle they found themselves on the short end of a 3-2 score.

Although they were defeated, the Tigers were still confident as they had played their best game against Lincoln-Sudbury. The booters went into their next game expecting victory and were successful as they clobbered an outclassed team from Watertown, 6-0.

This success was short lived as the Tigers were robbed of a victory by Medford. Newton gained early leads of 2-0 and 3-1 but with luck and a fluke goal in the closing minutes was stifled by the Mustangs, as they lost 4-3.

The conclusion of the season was more profitable for Newton. The Tigers posted convincing victories over Brookline, Newton South and Watertown.

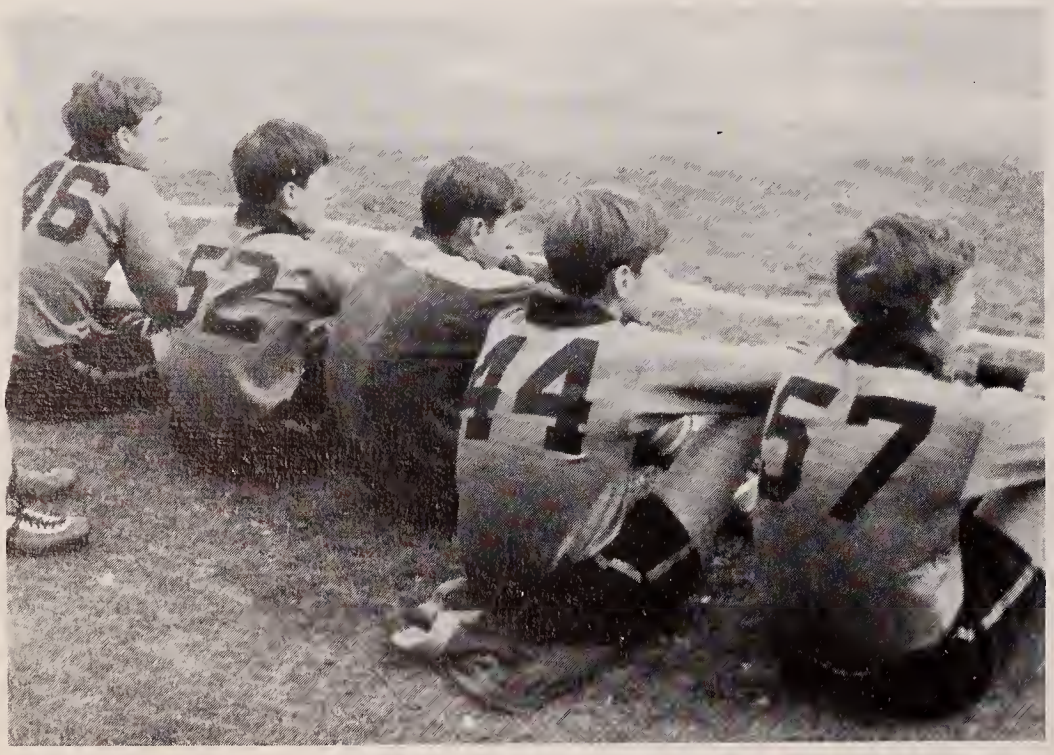

It was a good season, but, with a little change of fortune, it could have been a great season. The team always seemed to do everything the hard way, while their opponents got easy goals.

The offense was sparked by Erminio DeMambro who scored 10 goals, a Newton High record, while only playing one-half of the season. Other standouts on offense were Enrico Demambro, Larry Delicata, Bob Houghteling, Andy Rosenberg, and Adrian Wolcott. As a unit this group worked skillfully in setting up their goals.

The defense was always battling and struggling to keep the ball in the offensive half of the field. It was led by Stan Bloom, Steve Cain, Dudley Cotton, Rennie Cullman, Captain Hank Fishkind, and Richard Sacks. Newton also had the benefit of often spectacular goaltending by Jim Remley, and when he was injured, by Fraser Gurd.

If the season had been longer, the Tigers could have booted their way to the top.

CROSS COUNTRY

A tremendous team effort brought the cross country squad to a stunning perfect record, Suburban Championship. Blessed with great depth and dedication, the team was a credit to Coach Bailey.

Captain Joe Greenman and his sixteen team-mates displayed great team spirit as they sped by the Suburban League. Two juniors, Bill Tomb and Bob Tennant, battled for first places, combining with Greenman to form a one-two-three punch. This triple punch often clinched the meet before other squads had scored. The Harriers were not dominated by a few speedsters, though. Many times the squad took five, six, and even seven of the seven places.

Six hard-working sophomores and juniors, Tony Amadei, Herris Gottin, Richard Linn, Bruce Patterson, Chuck Raffel, Ken Sidman, and Ken Prince, finished the season undefeated.

One of the highpoints of the season was the suburban League championship. At the championship meet, six Newton High boys captured six of the top eleven places. Bob Tennant won the first place trophy, topping the honors. The state meet capped the season as the Herriers placed fifth, the highest a Newton squad has ever placed. Bob Tennant ran to a 14th place medal.

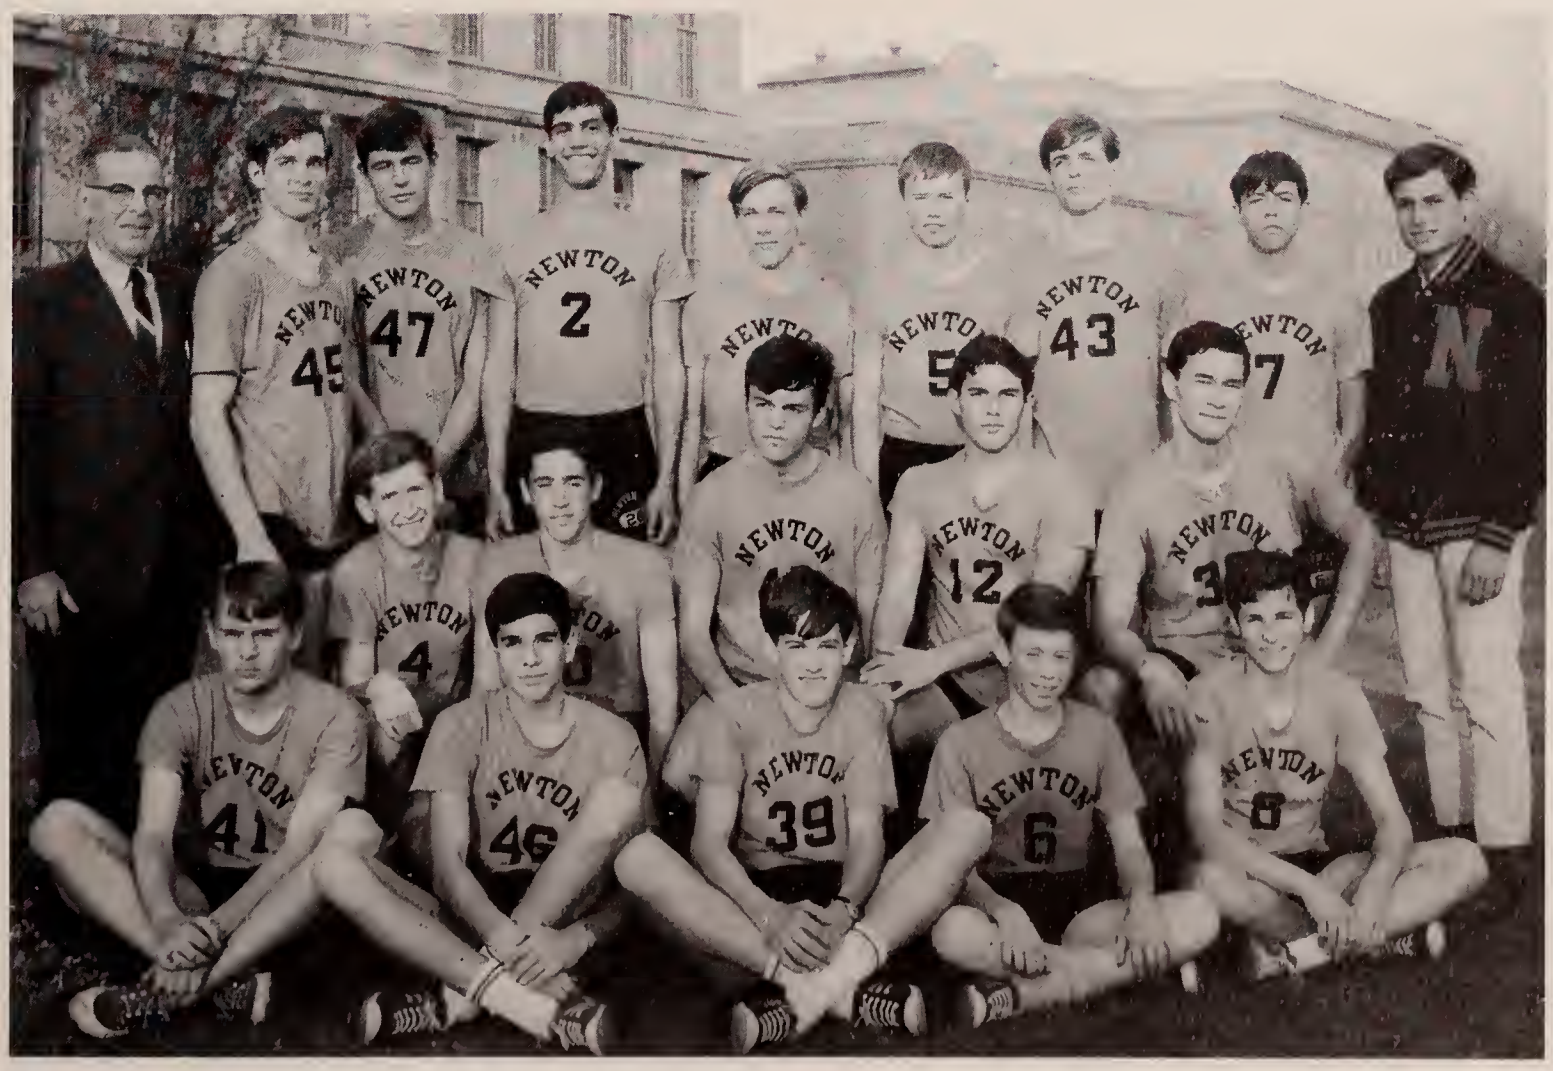

Coach Bailey had a brilliant season, and we can look for similar success next year with the top runners returning.

GIRLS' FIELD HOCKEY

The joy and satisfaction that a boy experiences in being a member of a varsity team at Newton High is paralleled by the joy and satisfaction which a girl experiences in playing a girls' varsity sport. This year's Girl's Hockey Team is evidence of this fact.

Traveling from their first game at Arlington to their last game at Winchester, the team ended the season with a record of four wins, five losses and no ties. This rather discouraging result does not prove that the girls were not skilled or hard-working, for indeed they were.

Captain of this year's team was Maureen O'Brien, a senior who played the position of right forward. Moe was backed up by a team which consisted mainly of underclassmen.

Hockey coach Miss Lukowicz expressed delight with the team. She expects that next year, with the assistance of the many sophomores and juniors who played varsity this year, the team will enjoy an even finer record.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Girls' basketball at Newton High consisted of ten varsity and ten junior varsity members, and coach Miss Carolyn Lukowitz. Once the teams had been chosen, the girls practiced numerous drills after school—layups, set shots, foul shots. After the girls had mastered these drills, they moved on to a more complex zig-zag drill, which they occasionally "goofed", to the delight of the boys junior varsity team, watching at the other end of the court.

Co-captains of the varsity were Maureen O'Brien and Linda Arslanian, and of the junior varsity, Darlene Gratto and Jo Covington. These four were respsonsible for, among other things, seeing that each team member was properly dressed in her black and blue (symbolic perhaps?) tunic.

At the first game of the year, against Winchester on Friday the 13th (!), the team proved the danger of the day; they were soundly trounced.

Girls' Basketball at Newton High is being a senior and trying to make a team that each girl will remember after graduation, and being a junior or a sophomore and trying to make a great team for the next year, and the next.

HOCKEY

Every Saturday afternoon several hundred school-spirited Newton High students go down to the trolley station and get a Park Street car. They jam into the car, ignore the "No Smoking" signs, often short change the conductor, and fight for seats with little old ladies. After a 30 minute ride they get off at the Arlington Street station and transfer to the Arborway trolley. They take this to the Symphony station where they get off, walk up one long flight of stairs and down two blocks till they get to the Boston Arena. They pay their dollar admission, find their friends, and go to their seats. They are now ready to enjoy 36 minutes of Newton High hockey.

This year as in the past, the Newton High hockey team gave its fans a lot to enjoy. Newton has always had a strong hockey team, and this year was no exception. Except for two embarrassing losses, Newton remained undefeated, and clinched a berth in the state. Lacking exceptional individual stars of the stature of a Dickie Toomey or a Kevin McClatchey, Newton was forced to rely on good team play, strong forechecking, and hard fought goals. Newton had an abundance of all three of these things and therefore racked up an excellent 7-2-2 record (as of this writing).

Newton started off the season convincingly with a 4-2 victory over Brookline. A hat trick by Donny Gallagher set Donny off on a high scoring season and gave Newton the margin it needed for its first victory.

The winning streak, however, didn't last long. In its second game Newton faced Arlington, probably the best team in the state. The incredibly balanced Arlington sextet proved just too much for Newton, and it pelted the Cats by a 6-0 score.

Newton got right back on the victory trail in its next game by shelling a weak Rindge team 7-0.

The next game was probably the biggest letdown for the Newton fans. The Tigers could only manage a 1-1 tie off against the inferior Somerville Team. This game, however, put blood in the Tigers' eye as they played two consecutive great games against the relatively strong Medford and Waltham teams. Medford jumped off to a lead early in the game, but the Tigers stormed back before a crowd of four rooters to a 5-3 victory.

Next came the game with Waltham, one of the team victories Newton had counted on. Newton stunned Bastarche and Company with four quick goals, a deficit which Waltham couldn't overcome. They lost to Newton 6-3.

Cambridge Latin followed. The defensively strong but offensively weak Cantabs managed a 2-2 tie with Newton.

Newton played and beat Brookline for the second time, this time by a 3-0 margin.

Next, however, came the second Arlington massacre. This time Newton got shellacked by a 9-2 score.

Newton shrugged off this drubbing and on the next two Saturdays shelled Rindge 11-1 and Somerville 10-0!

It was, on the whole, a great season for the Newton High version of the Bruins. They had fine team play from Captain Steve Toomey, whose forechecking and playmaking were invaluable to the Newton success. They got heady play and scoring from Donny Gallagher and Bobby Cotter. They got more scoring and speed from Charlie Donovan and Jackie Droz. Great hustle was the contribution of Bruce Huntley. Bob Newis was the goalie who never got the recognition he deserved for consistently fine netminding. Fine defense was provided by the Dezotell brothers, Ricard and Michael, and by Al Alessi.

BASKETBALL

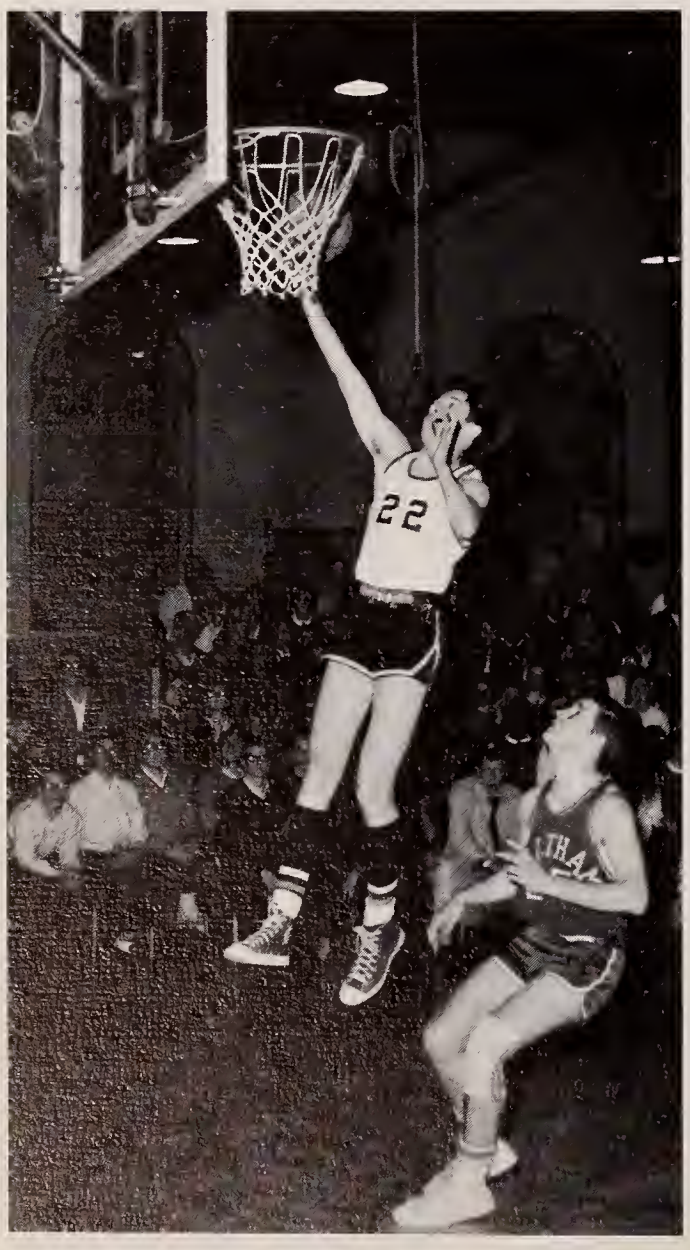

Newton has never been a real basketball town. Weak teams have failed to generate very much fan interest. This year, however, was a real exception. Coach Al Fortune managed to field the best NHS basketball team in years. This hustling, exciting team thrilled its fans all year long with upsets, near-upsets, and come-from-behind victories. A team that wasn't supposed to give anybody much trouble proved that it was capable of beating almost any other team. It wasn't until almost the end of the season that Waltham finally eliminated us from contention for a coveted berth in the state tourney.

The hoopsters started strong with a victory over Newton South 45-31. In their second game they showed just how tough they were going to be. For although they finally lost the game, they almost upset the league's strongest team, Weymouth.

The next game was an exicting, though also as heartbreaking, as a game can be. Newton appeared to have fallen too far behind Rindge to ever catch up. But with just 3 seconds left, the supposedly inferior Cats tied the game. Unfortunately, a basket by Rindge as the final buzzer sounded shattered Newton's moment of glory as we lost, 56-54.

Newton bounced back with two straight victories, however: 52-35 over Cambridge Latin and a stunning and brilliant 53-50 victory over previously undefeated Waltham.

Another heartbreaker followed as the hustling Tigers just couldn't snatch a close one way from Brookline, and they lost 49-45.

Two strong victories followed as Newton gave successive drubbings to Arlington, 72-57, and Newton South, 80-56.

In the next game Newton was outclassed for the only time all season as it was shelled by Rindge 90-63.

Newton roared back with three straight wins. They revenged their earlier defeat at the hands of Brockton by a 77-75 score, shelled Cambridge Latin for the second time with a 72-56 score, and really bombed Arlington 83-49.

This good fortune finally came to an end as Waltham, a team the Tigers had upset earlier in the season, got back at the Tigers. They knocked them out of tourney contention by beating them 48-37.

Nonetheless, Newton had a great season. They compiled a fine 11-9 record. Their strong defense, upheld particularly by Houston, Ward, Cook, Howland, and Hicks, held their opponents below 60 points 11 times in 16 games. Captain Paul Ward had a brilliant season as he scored, rebounded, and defended peerlessly. Warren Houston was often the offensive star for the Cats as well as a defensive standout. Peter Hicks contributed both points and defense work. Another all-round performer for Coach Fortune was Ronnie Howland, who regretably missed much of the season due to injuries suffered in a car crash. Newton had tremendous bench strength with such capable performers as playmaker Ron Cooke, Paul Colantunio, whose shooting and rebounding often sparked the Cats, and hustlers Dwight Weist and Bob Houghteling.

GYMNASTICS

The Gymnastics Team repeated last year's performance as Co-captains Richard Martin and Dan Runfola led the squad to the state championship. As was expected, the Tigers dominated the competition in the Suburban League as they captured the Championship with a 6-0 record.

Outside of the league they were not as successful, losing to powerful teams from Andover and Lexington, but their championship hopes were not yet foiled.

The day of the state meet arrived and it looked like it would be very close between Newton, Andover, Lexington, Framingham South and Braintree. The lead fluctuated throughout the meet as none of the teams could gain a sizable lead.

Going into the final event it was still anybody's meet, as the four teams were within two points of each other. It required two spectacular performances by Andover gymnasts on the ring to capture a comeback victory with Lexington second and Newton third.

Richie Martin proved that he deserved to win the title of all-round champion of Massachusetts by winning the floor exercises, horizontal bar and parallel bars. Dan Runfola won the long horse, the event in which he is the state champ. He also placed fifth in the rings. Steve Clancy and Robert Henry took fifth place in the tumbling and the side horse competitions respectively. Newton High School is indeed proud of the team's fine accomplishments.

INDOOR TRACK

Mr. Boyle and Mr. Gallagher guided the Indoor Track squad to a successful second place Suburban League finish. The team won six meets, yielding only to undefeated Weymouth.

Joe Greenman was outstanding in this year's competition; when entered in the 600, 1000, or mile he won. Captain Dick Horrigan excelled in the 1000, while John Walen, running the 600, came up with the fifth fastest time in the division. Two-miler Bob Tennant set a new school record: 10:14.8 beating the old mark by more than a second.

Coaches Boyle and Gallagher are to be congatulated for the success Newton's squads have consistently enjoyed. Their coaching talents have been amply tested in the past and we can look forward to future winning seasons.

Drafting is the accepted means of expression used by the scientist, engineer, designer, technician, and tradesman. Usually an idea starts with a rough sketch, then the sketch is refined and eventually it is made into a finished mechanical drawing. Since drafting is a key function in any engineering or development process, a drawing is regarded as a means of instruction and must clearly convey its intended message.

At Newton Technical High School the boys are taught to prepare drawings that conform to accepted standards and practices. The students use the same equipment that is in use in the most modern drafting rooms. The boys learn the basic techniques which are the accepted standards in industry.

AUTO SHOP

A well trained mechanic, one who can diagnose automotive troubles, is always in demand. For example, motor tune-up is a process that requires the services of a man with technical knowledge, coupled with shop skills and experience. Likewise, the adjustment and repair of automatic transmissions, and power systems is a task that only a trained man can perform. To keep abreast of the developments in the design and functioning of internal combustion engines, a mechanic must have a diversified and sound technical education.

In Newton Technical High's Automobile department, the skill and experience necessary are included in the program. For example, the School is fully equipped with machines, apparatus, and testing meters for a teacher to help a boy to develop along more technical lines.

PRINT SHOP

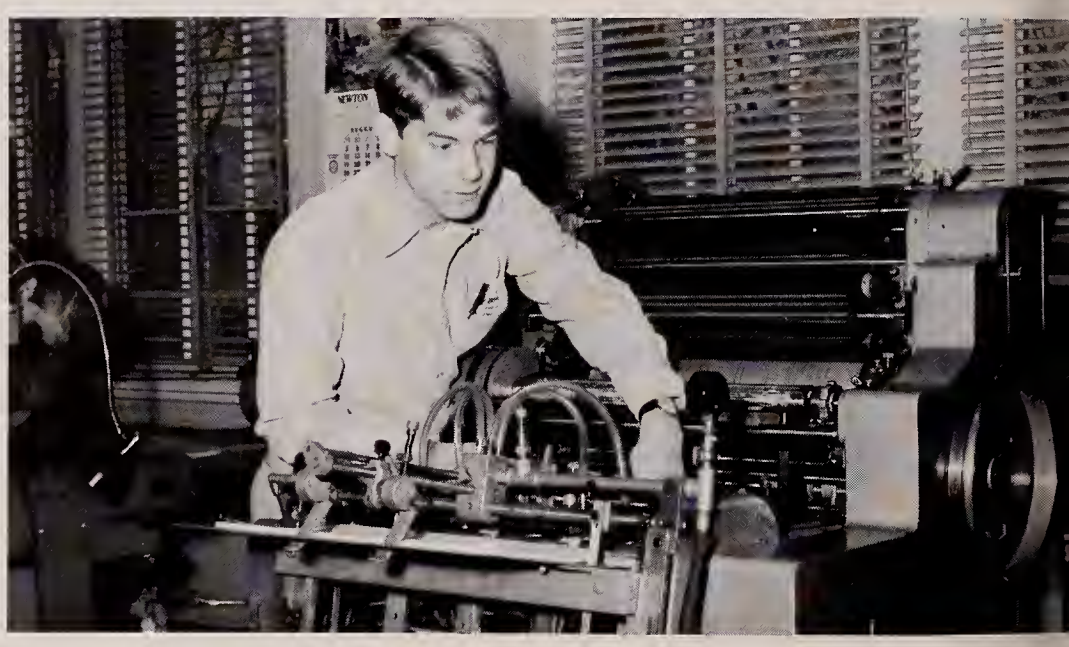

A boy who wishes to become a printer is entering one of the most important arts of modern civilization. As an industry, printing ranks among the leading occupations and always has attracted young men. The work is interesting and steady; the wages paid are high and constant throughout the year. Few trades offer so many opportunities for the energetic and skilled workman to advance himself.

The Newton Technical High School prepares a boy for employment in the many divisions of the Printing Industry. The student is trained in all the phases of the printing trade and during his senior year he may specialize in an area of his particular interest, such as linotype or offset camera.

Electricity

The electrical trade cannot be thought of as merely an occupation where the artisan is concerned with a limited application of his skill but rather as one in which the scope is so broad that a person finds employment presenting challenge in many phases of work. The rapid but steady increase in the use of electricity gives every indication of continued growth.

To equip boys with the training needed in this field, the Newton Technical High School has two courses. For boys who wish to begin training when they have completed the ninth grade, a three-year course is available. For high school graduates, the Technical High School offers a two year intensive and concentrated course in electricity.

Out of the myriad fields of human endeavor the fascinating art of radio and television has been expanding along many avenues at such a pace that the industry eagerly awaits those boys who have acquired a good preparation in the basic fundamentals of these new and interesting industries.

The School offers a course which provides proper training in the most modern methods of radio and television repair including an expanded study in the use of transistors. Success comes first and easiest to those who are prepared for their jobs. Actual repair and testing on all types of radio, phonograph, and television receivers are carried on in the shop training.

The decade ahead will be a period of above-average growth for the building industry. Strong economic and population trends support the favorable outlook for construction.

Whenever there is a need for new housing, there is a corresponding demand for cabinet work, interior and exterior builders' finish, furniture, and other wood products. The call for skilled workers is so great that on many occasions Newton Technical High School has been unable to supply the industry with the desired number of trained boys for full time employment. In part, the demands have been met by our students who are in the Cooperative Plan, and by others who work after school hours. Although the latter practice is not ideal, it does give the boys valuable trade experience and often may be an introduction to future permanent employment.

Science

Metalworking is one of the most significant areas of instruction in industrial education. Its importance stems from the fact that it represents an extremely essential foundation of our industries.

The increased use of metals had created an increase in the number of sheet metal workers. Due to the urgent requirements and demand for precision the sheet metal workers in the field of missiles, aircraft, IBM, radar and its component parts, the manufacturers are turning to technical schools for assistance.

The Newton Technical High School provides a course of instruction in sheet metal work comparable to the general atmosphere, standards, and practices of the trade, and prepares a boy for employment in many phases of the sheet metal industry.

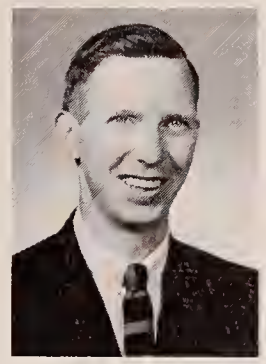

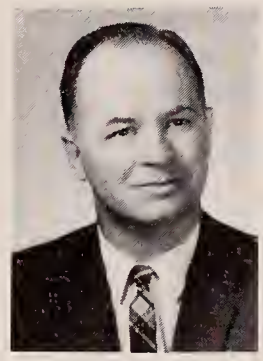

We would like to thank the Technical High School for the use of their pamphlets in the writing of these articles.

Machine Related

Machinists work with metals. They cut, bend, forge, grind, and form metals into literally millions of shapes to produce the machines which make our lives what they are today. The work of the machinist is challenging and interesting. There is a real and lasting satisfaction in having a part in the production of machines and mechanical devices.

The School offers a three-year course which provides training so that a boy may obtain work in the metal-working field.

To supplement work in the shop, a machine laboratory is equipped with the latest devices and machines for performing experiments relating to the trade.

NEWTON HIGH SCHOOL
NEWTONVILLE, MASS.

Dear Class of 1967:

Our three years with you have been most pleasant and memorable. You were full of life and came up with many new ideas. You were also responsible and cooperative.

You would not stay off the grass, and at times your criticisms shook us. But amidst the uncertainties of the Viet Nam war, the increased use of drugs etc., your good will and decency renewed our faith in human nature and in the young.

Life will be no less complicated for you in the near future and the only advice that I can pass along to you as you seek to find your way is to take your principles and ideals quite seriously but don't take yourselves too seriously.

With every confidence that we shall be proud of you in the future, I extend to you my thanks and best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

Richard W. Mechem

Before you accept that first job . . .

Look over your employer as carefully as he does you

What's the Company like anyway? Would I be proud to work there? Reputation for square dealing with employees? Pleasant surroundings?

Will I be working with others my own age? Are they friendly? Do they socialize after hours?

Will the boss be reasonable? Appreciate good, hard work, but won't explode if I make a mistake?

Will I make a decent week's pay? Have a chance for raises, advancement, more responsibility? How about fringe benefits?

Is the work challenging? I had what it takes to get through high school. Will they give me a chance to use my brains?

Note: Many young men and women in this area can answer "Yes" to these questions. They work for New England Telephone.

Why not talk with our employment interviewer soon . . . before you graduate? Ask your Guidance Counselor to tell you when and where to apply.

Spring 1967

"Newton schools to teach sex" screeched the Boston Traveler and later the Newtonite during the end of April. But Superintendent Brown quieted down irate parents and interested students by explaining that the program was only under consideration. Even so, spring 1967 at Newton High was remarkable for its lack of controversy. After the winter fire scare, NHS students and teachers found that they were not going to blazes and ran off some successful projects. The spring musical, the expanded sports schedule, the proms and the graduation are all recorded in these pages.

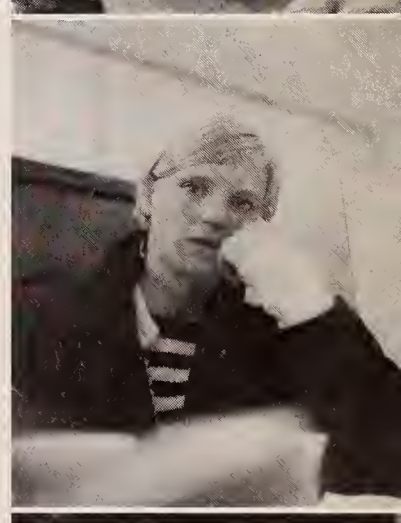

The often neglected little things at Newton High added the most interest to the spring. The completion by Mr. Renzo Ricciuti's Fundamentals of Engineering classes of a mechanical tiger named Renzo which will roar at Dickinson Stadium this fall; the establishment of a "Jobs for Youth" service enabling many NHSers to accumulate gold, if not wisdom, during the summer; and the added beauty? of our very own Building I after a February vacation painting and fireproofing job were all subtle highlights of spring.

Other small points of interest included almost invisible work by the Student Council, the expanded "new history" program of the Newtonite, the club election meetings featuring the highest attendances of the year, and selection of the 109th planning committee for a new high school.

Newton High also had its own mini-love-in, known as Gentle Thursday, which will probably not rank alongside Bermuda Day, Senior Skip Day, and Memorial Day as a Newton High institution. And NHSers continued to produce their own graffiti (defined as wall inscriptions to be regarded fondly by future archeologists): "Caution: Building I May Be Hazardous to Your Health;" "Mr. Wiest took the dare;" "Support the Newton School Committee: Bribe Your Teacher;" and "Did he or didn't he? Only his housemaster knows for sure."

Only the seniors knew for sure what Spring 1967 was really like—and they weren't telling.

South Pacific

"South Pacific," Newton High's largest dramatic production of 1966-1967, was presented to two jam-packed auditoriums on the nights of April 7 and 8. The play was both an artistic and financial triumph due to the hard work and cooperation of over 250 students and faculty members who contributed both on the stage and behind the scenes.

An all-school musical had been absent at Newton High for five years when the Student Council laid the ground work for its long-awaited revival in the early winter of 1966. Auditions were held in December for "South Pacific," and rehearsals soon got under way under the direction of Mr. Michael Bruer. Other faculty advisors included Miss Geraldine Seaver, chorus and soloists; Mr. Peter Cobb, the orchestra; and Mr. Charles Chase, the stage crew.

Finally, after four long months of after school frustrations and evening nightmares, the opening night arrived. For over three hours the almost flawless production continued, and it was well worth the standing ovation it received.

There are few people who saw "South Pacific" who will ever forget the sailor chorus, the nurses, the musical score played by the orchestra, the never-miss-a-cue stage crew, and the supporting committees which contributed to Newton High's bid for the 1966-1967 Broadway season.

You may fire me for this, but you smell!

Should we wrap it?

VARSITY BASEBALL

Front Row: G. Gershman, P. Hicks, M. Goldman, A. Ciocca: Captain, C. Asaff, R. Dezotell, P. DiDomenico. Second Row: Mr. Ferguson: Coach, S. Colantuono, E. Libman, S. Pleuler, R. Steinberl, A. Cameron, K. Mancuso, C. Clapton, Mr. Fraktman: Assistant Coach. Back Row: R. Arcese, P. Nelson, D. Westlun, C. Berry, P. Manson.

Newton High's "hitless wonders" combined pitching and defense to finish with a 14-4 mark, one game behind league leaders Weymouth and Arlington.

The highlight of the season was Archie Cameron's no-hitter against Rindge Tech. Only three men reached base and 14 went down swinging. The overall Newton pitching was strong, with just 23 runs allowed in 18 league games.

Next year juniors Cameron and Phil Nelson will provide the Cats with a strong battery. Nelson was the team's leading hitter but missed most of the season due to injury. Sophomore infielders Ronnie Arcese and Colin Clapton will also return. Players from the J.V. and sophomore teams will complete the squad.

Despite the team's season-long batting slump, Coach Ferguson was happy with this team because they played as a team. The Tigers lost a crucial game to Cambridge Latin 4-3 to ruin their pennant chances, but they did not become discouraged and finished the season with a 1-0 victory over Brookline.

SOPHOMORE BASEBALL

Front Row: D. Levy, P. Campbell, M. Moore, M. O'Brien, P. Jefferson, L. Arslanian, D. O'Day, K. Pugiliese. Back Row: D. Grotto, T. Davenport, W. Keil, C. Edwards, J. Covington, K. Wons, L. Houston, Miss Lukowicz: Coach.

This year's girls softball team was, in the words of its coach Miss Lukowicz, "A pleasure to work with because it was comprised of many good athletes whom I both admired as players and young ladies." Unfortunately some femininity did not help in an essentially masculine sport as they ended their season at 0-5.

The team relied heavily on Linda Arslanian's pitching and bats of co-capt. Mo O'Brian, Linda Arslanian, Lynne Houston and Tina Davenport (Linda & Lynne hit homers) to keep the games close.

The outlook for next year is promising with many sophomores returning. They tried but finished last this year, so the only way they can go is up.

BOYS' VARSITY TENNIS

GIRLS' VARSITY TENNIS

Front Row: F. Yanofsky, B. Dangel, B. Beard, R. Pigeon, J. Feinberg, K. Dealy. Back Row: D. Lawton, H. Miller, S. Conant, A. Mechem, R. Averback, L. Brilliant, D. Ross. Missing: K. Ham. S. Conant.

Tennis coach George Jessup went one up on his team's superlative third place in the state gymnastics meet. The tennis team placed second in the state, losing 4-1 in the final match of the championship tourney to their unreconstructed cross-town rivals, Newton South. Paul Lubin was the most consistent tennis-bagger all year, while co-captains Andy Rosenberg and Steve Russell, along with Steve Cain and Dave Hirshberg, the best net player on the team, all were consistent winners during the 8-2 suburban league season.

The girls' varsity team led by Anne Mechem and Lynne Brilliant in the singles and Jeri Feinberg and Debby Lawton in the doubles finished even on the year at 2-2. Two games were rained out which indicated the main problem this year. Too much wet stuff. With wet courts there just wasn't enough time to practice, and things were very hectic.

The JV team was better, losing only once in five. Two of their victories and their one loss were against varsity teams.

When Newton High started its first competitive season by breaking into one of the toughest leagues in the state, many of the players had never held a la crosse stick before.

But under the leadership of team captains Al Alessi, who scored seven goals in the last three games, and Doug Smith-Peterson, the team compiled a very respectable record of 3-6-1. Mike Vengrow also starred. The team progressed through the year, as it won three and tied one of the last five games. If the advancement were continued into next year, Newton could be very impresive. Next year's varsity, with Bruce Baltimore and Joe Picarello co-wielding the captaincy, looks forward to really going competitive.

VARSITY LACROSSE

The golf team finished with only a 5-4-1 league record, but the team was not at its full strength due to the dismissal of its top two players because of disciplinary reasons.

There was only one senior on the squad this year, so seven of the eight lettermen will return led by the top golfers, Ralph Murphy, Jack Mavasakalien and Dudley Cotton.

Mr. Ronayne wishes his football team was as good as his golf team, which he expects to win the League Championship next year.

Walking on air

Outdoor track should have been indoors this year. The team was nearly drowned as well as frozen on successive occasions, but they still managed to finish with an undefeated season and the Suburban League Championship. The track team maintained its winning tradition, having lost only three dual outdoor meets in Mr. Boyle's 24 year coaching career.

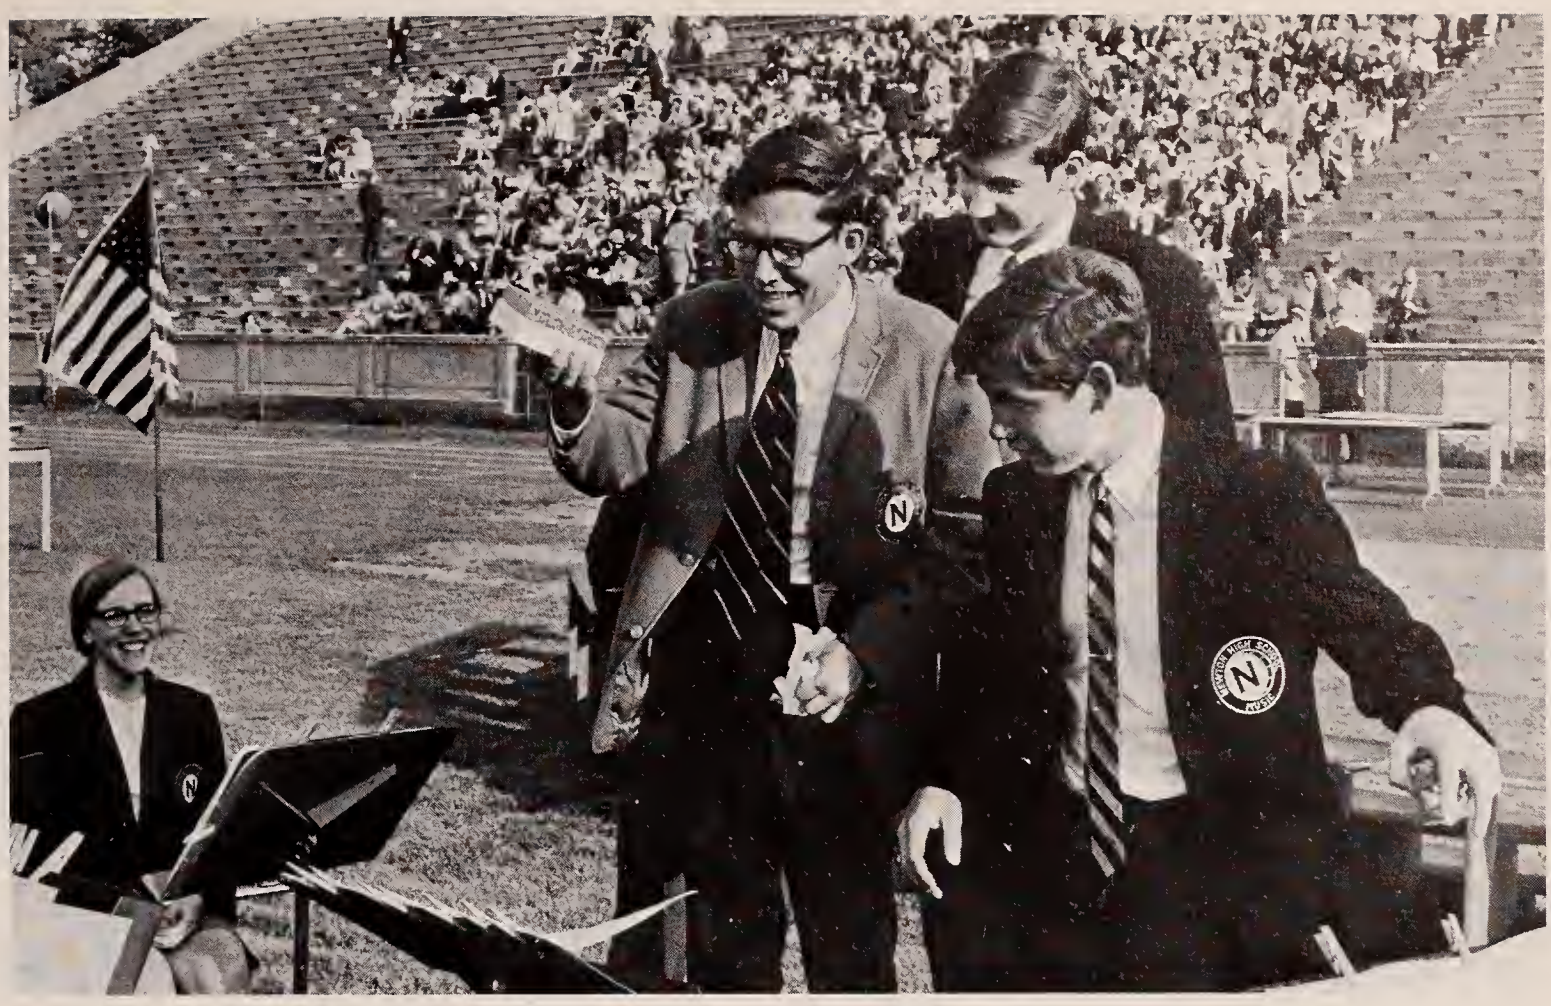

The team scored well in the St. John's and Belmont relays and the State Meet also. Next year's co-capt. Chris Quinn took a third in the low hurdles in the Mass. Meet. This year's capt. Joe Greenman and Adrian Walcott were usually 1-2 finishers in the 880. Ken Prince, the other co-capt. for next year, looked strong in the 880, while juniors Bob Tenant and Bill Tomb were the dynamic duo of the longer events.

Ron Howland excelled in the broad jump and low hurdles, and Kevin Morrison was exceptional in the broad jump and undefeated the high hurdles. Juniors John Piselli in the shotput, and Robbie Cohen in the discus, were also regular winners. Coach Boyle's silver anniversary should be golden.

The gifted Mr. Peter Cobb, now leaving for study at the U. of Chicago, revitalized the Tiger Tooters during his half-dozen years as director of the Band-wagon. The music sometimes spluttered but the spirit was always great, and Band-Aids were always glad to help with crazy hats, Mickey Mouse cheers, or other antics. "Corn off the Cobb" was the key, but now Mr. Cobb may temporarily have a chance to rest his corns acquired from hours of drill and planning. Thanks.

Mr. Chase, a Newton High industrial arts teacher for over 20 years, never tired of teaching, and was always involved in making improvements, particularly in our disciplinary policy. His devotion to education and his management of the stage crew deserve our gratitude.

The Rites of

The Junior Prom, otherwise known as "Son of Senior Prom", was a great improvement over the Sophomore Batman Dance of 1966. President John Ziergiebel and prom chairman Tamar Shapiro reserved "A Place in the Sun" for every junior on May 19, and if a few places went vacant, so what? Great suns on the walls and smaller ones on the many tables transformed the conventional ballroom of the Chestnut Hill Country Club into a sun-shiny, colorful beach for 250 junior sons and daughters to bask in. Mr. and Mrs. Mechem, as well as Mayor Basbas and other big local celebrities, welcomed the comers at eight, and only after the witching hour of midnight could class committeemen be seen making plans for next year.

The Senior Prom was just like eating in the cafeteria. Sure, the cafeteria, serving _____ with the _____ Band and Connie Francis belting out a tune from behind the counter of hot pastromi. "Try to Remember" a lunch like that!

Yet, despite its failure to evoke the aura of the cafeteria, the Senior Prom was a very _____ conclusion to a three-year history of _____ events. In true class of '67 style they abandoned the customary prom procedure of first storming various restaurants and then converging on a bestreamered gym. Instead, Monticello's _____ was chosen as the gracious host of both _____, with _____ and _____ on hand to lend an air of traditionalism and to make everyone feel at home.

'The Last Days'

The senior countdown is both a time for rejoicing and a time for sadness. Seniors look ahead with rising expectations to their new careers in college, business, or the military, and recall with a sense of relief their hours of basking in the fragrance of our cafeteria and dashing madly through the labyrinth of halls and tunnels. But they also remember the friendships, the shared delights, the three years of learning, and above all, the piece of life which they have left behind and will never regain. For it's an incubated world that they have lived in for these three years. No place else will they ever enjoy a thirtieth of the attention of five adults or even the brief consideration of the IBM machine. At no other time will they be expected only to do their daily assignments, shouldering no real responsibility for the befuddled world we live in.

When afterwards the unnerving aspects of their high school careers are forgotten, only scattered memories of good times remain. Even a few months after the last days those years at high school begin to take on an unreal quality.

Who can tell what will happen to the departing seniors in five, or ten, or fifty years? Some will be satisfied, other disgruntled; some wise, other close-minded; some respected, others feared; some loved, others hated; some of peace, others of war. But whoever or whatever they become, they will never feel or think exactly the same as they did in high school.

The Culmination

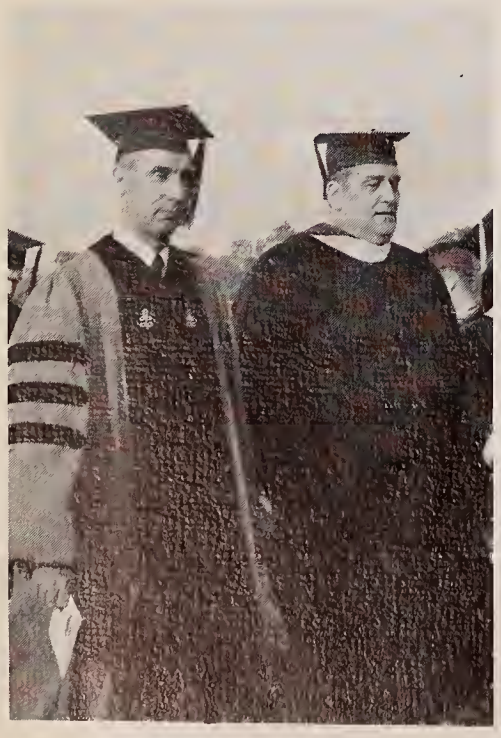

Newton High is characteristically restless and impatient with one technique after several years. In its teaching approaches, its curricula, and the members of the faculty themselves, the pass-word is new. Tradition is eyed with revulsion as being out-dated and regressive.

However, we do treasure two traditions, our old buildings and our graduation exercise. Somehow there is nothing as spine-tingling as the same old "Pomp and Circumstance". Year after year, the sight of all those hundreds of human and humane graduates trooping down the field is enough to renew one's faith in humanity. The harmonizing voices of the choirs, indistinguishable as the words may be, and the almost audible exhortations of the speakers are all precious.

Each year, though, the face obscured by the flourishing flag is different. This year Senator Edward Kennedy spoke clearly and meaningfully to the graduating class. It was painful at first to listen to the familiar Kennedy voice, but as he spoke we could not help but become engrossed in his message: Climb every mountain.
